ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

No serious and creative work worth the name can be completed successfully without the help and assistance of other people. The present research work is no exception. While writing the present thesis, I have also incurred a variety of intellectual debts. I would, therefore, like to acknowledge the contribution of all these people who have contributed directly or indirectly towards the completion of this research work.

In the first place, I would like to convey my heartiest thanks to my learned supervisor Dr. Gurjeet Singh, Professor of Law, Guru Nanak Dev University, Amritsar, formerly Vice-Chancellor, Rajiv Gandhi National University of Law, Punjab (Patiala) and presently Vice-Chancellor, National Law University and Judicial Academy, Assam due to whose able guidance and moral support, I could complete my research work on time. Despite his extremely busy academic and administrative routine, he made himself available to me as and when I needed his guidance. He not only guided me all through, but also inculcated in me the importance of being a true professional, of being disciplined and of being systematic. My sincere appreciation for his generosity and for his intellectual contribution towards my work.

I would also like to express my sincere thanks to one of my learned teachers Dr. Rattan Singh, Professor and Head, Department of Laws, Guru Nanak Dev University, Amritsar for encouraging me and supporting me whole-heartedly all through my research work. Professor Rattan Singh was also very kind and helpful towards me all through my stay in the Department for which I felt highly obliged. His unassuming nature and his friendly and self-effacing attitude has always been a source of inspiration for all the budding scholars.

I would also like to express my sincere thanks to all my learned teachers in the Department of Laws at Guru Nanak Dev University, Amritsar without whose blessings, guidance, help, support and direction, I would not have been able to complete my research work on time. I am also grateful to all the members of the non-teaching staff at the Department of Laws for their kind support and whole-hearted co-operation at every step.
I am equally thankful to the library staff of the following libraries (names written in an alphabetic order): Bhai Gurdas Library and the Library of the Department of Laws Guru Nanak Dev University, Amritsar; Guru Nanak Dev University Regional Campus, Jalandhar; Indian Institute of Public Administration, New Delhi; Indian Law Institute, New Delhi; Indian Society of International Law, New Delhi; NALSAR University of Law, Hyderabad; National Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission, New Delhi; National Human Rights Commission, New Delhi; Panjab University, Chandigarh; Panjab University Regional Campus, Ludhiana; Punjabi University, Patiala; and Rajiv Gandhi National University of Law, Punjab (Patiala).

The three Hon’ble Presidents of the National Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission deserve my utmost respect and sincere appreciation for their kind encouragement. These are: Hon’ble Mr. Justice V. Balakrishna Iradi; Hon’ble Mr. Justice Ashok Bhan; and Hon’ble Mr. Justice D.K. Jain. These people are the institutions in themselves and a student like me just looks with awe at them for the contribution these learned and honourable judges have made and are making in the growth and consolidation of consumer protection law in India.

I am also deeply beholden to the all the staff members of the National Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission (NCDRC), New Delhi. However, I would like make a special mention of the name Mr. Iqbal Ahmed, Assistant Registrar, for his invaluable help and support at every stage of my research work. My thanks are also due to the following officers: Mr. Anil Srivastva, Joint Registrar, Mr. S. Hanumantta Rao, Deputy Registrar, Mr. H.C. Joshi, Assistant Registrar and Mr. S. Vishwanathan, Assistant Registrar.

My sincere thanks are also due to Ms. Anjali Dhingra, assistant librarian, to Mr. Sripal, MTS, Mr. Yatinder Kumar Sakkarwal, UDC and to all other staff members of the NCDRC Library and the administration whose names I might not have mentioned, but they deserve sincere appreciation for the help and support that they extended to me during my frequent visits to the NCDRC office and the library for my research work.

Last but not the least, I would like to thank my mother Mrs. Madhu Chugh who has always been a pillar of strength for me. She instilled in me the required confidence and always stood by me against all odds, especially after the sad and timely demise of my dear father. But for the unfailing support of my mother, this thesis would not have seen the light of the day.
One person who meant the world to me and to whom I would like to dedicate the present thesis is my adorable father Late Col. M.K. Chugh who may not be present with me physically but his words of wisdom have always been a source of light and inspiration in my academic as well as in my personal life. My late father was the one who recognized the real potential in me and he had always been a source of encouragement to me all thorough his life. He is solely responsible for whatever little I have attained in my life.

My sister Natasha and my brother in law Sumit have always been encouraging me to complete my work. Whenever I needed them, they were there to support me. I am also thankful to my niece Aluki and nephew Ansh for their love and affection. My special thanks also to my intimate friend Arti Sharma who lent unconditional support to me at every step of my study. I have no words to thank her for their kindness and whole-hearted support.
