ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The first person I would like to thank is my supervisor Dr. Pankaj Nagar, Department of Statistics, University of Rajasthan, Jaipur (India). He always kept an eye on the progress of my research work and available when I needed his valuable advise. Especially the strict and extensive comments and the many discussions and interactions with Dr. Pankaj Nagar had a direct impact on the final form and quality of this thesis. Besides of being an excellent supervisor, he is a high-quality human being with values and ethics and has been a great mentor to step me ahead in this research. I am really glad and honored that I have come to get know Dr. Pankaj Nagar in my life.

I would also like to thank the other members of my PhD committee (DRC) who monitored my work and took effort in reading and providing me with valuable comments on my PhD Synopsis and earlier versions of this thesis.

I feel a deep sense of gratitude for my father Sh. Kulwant Singh and mother Smt. Bhupendra Kaur who formed part of my vision and taught me the good things that really matter in life.
I am very grateful for my wife and son, for their love and patience during the PhD research period, without their great support, this research work would have not been completed.

The chain of my gratitude would be definitely incomplete if I would forget to thank all my friends and at last again my deepest and sincere gratitude to Dr. Pankaj Nagar for inspiring and guiding me. Thanks to Almighty.
