Abstract

In this thesis, the author has obtained some results on oscillatory behavior of neutral delay difference equations of first order, second order and asymptotic behavior of fourth order nonlinear difference equations by employing one or more techniques such as summation averaging method and discrete inequalities. Some of the results presented in this thesis are new and some of them improved the existing results in the literature. Examples are given throughout the thesis, wherever necessary to illustrate the results.