CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS
CONTENTS
ABBREVIATIONS

CHAPTER 1: INTRODUCTION

1. Justification of the Research
2. Ethics and Its Different Concepts
   2.1. Definitions of Ethics
   2.2. Concepts of Morality and Virtue
   2.3. Differences between Ethics and Morality
   2.4. Relation between Conduct and Character
3. Concept of Ethics: Buddhism and Taoism
   3.1. The Middle Way (Mijjimapaṭipadā)
      3.1.1. Sīla
      3.1.2. Samādhi
      3.1.3. Paññā
   3.2. The Way of Virtue (Tao Te, 道德)
      3.2.1. Tao (道)
      3.2.2. Te (德)
4. Scope and Methodology of the Research
   4.1. Scope of the Research
   4.2. Structure of Thesis
   4.3. Methodology
CHAPTER 2: BUDDHISM AND TAOISM DURING THE GOLDEN AGE

1. The Historical Background of India and China during the Times of the Buddha and Lǎo Zǐ 38
   1.1. Religions and Culture milieu 38
   1.2. Political Situation 47
   1.3. Economical Situation 53

2. The Lives of the Buddha and Lǎo Zǐ 63
   2.1. The Life of the Buddha 63
      2.1.1. The Birth 63
      2.1.2. The Chronology 66
      2.1.3. The Lifeworks 67
      2.1.4. The Last Days 69
   2.2. The Life of Lao-Tzu 69
      2.2.1. The Birth 69
      2.2.2. The Chronology 72
      2.2.3. The Lifeworks 73
      2.2.4. The Last Days 76

3. The Establishment and Development of Buddhism and Taoism 76
   3.1. Phases of Development in Buddhism and Taoism 76
   3.2. Brief Survey of the Buddhist and Taoist Canons 85
      3.2.1. The Buddhist Canon 85
         3.2.1.1. Vinaya Pitaka 86
         3.2.1.2. Sutta Pitaka 88
         3.2.1.3. Abhidhamma Pitaka 92
      3.2.2. The Taoist Canon 95
         3.2.2.1. The Major groups of Canonical Texts 97
         3.2.2.2. The Minor Groups of Canonical Texts 98
CHAPTER 3: FOUNDATIONS OF THE BUDDHIST AND TAOIST ETHICS

1. Origin and Nature of Buddhist and Taoist Ethics 110
   1.1. The Origin of Buddhist Ethics 110
       1.1.1. The Noble Truth (Ariyasacca) 110
       1.1.2. The Perfection (Pāramita) 113
   2.1. The Origin of Taoist Ethics 116
       2.1.1. Virtue (Te, 德) 116
       2.1.2. The Three Treasures (Sān Bǎo, 三寶) 118

2. Buddhist Law of Conditionality and Taoist Nature Law 121
   2.1. Buddhist Law of Conditionality (Paṭccasamuppāda) 121
   2.2. Taoist Nature Law 125
       2.2.1. The Tao (道) 125
       2.2.2. Yīn Yáng (陰陽) 127

3. Kamma in Buddhism and Wú Wéi in Taoism 131
   3.1. Kamma 131
CHAPTER 4: CRITERIA FOR JUDGING MORAL AND IMMORAL ACTIONS IN BUDDHISM AND TAOISM

1. The Voice of Conscience in Buddhism and Taoism
   1.1. A Sense of Shame and Blame (Hiri and Ottapa) 147
   1.2. A Sense of Selflessness (無私) 150

2. Consequence or Result of Action in Buddhism and Taoism
   2.1. The result of Kamma (Vipāka) 152
   2.2. The benefit of Wú Wéi (無為之益) 157

3. Judging a Case of Killing: An Ethical View in Buddhism and Taoism
   3.1. Destruction of Life (Pāṇātipātā) 161
   3.2. Pleasure in killing (樂殺人) 163

4. Doctrine of Harmlessness: An Ethical View in the Buddhism and Taoism
   4.1. Non-violence (Ahiṃsa) 165
   4.2. Compassion (慈) 169

5. Comprehensive Views on Ethical Judgments
   5.1. Ethical Judgments in Buddhism 174
   5.2. Ethical Judgments in Taoism 177
CHAPTER 5: THE SOCIAL ETHICS IN BUDDHISM AND TAOISM

1. Social and Reciprocal Relationship in Buddhism and Taoism 180
   1.1. Human Happiness and Social Stability 180
   1.2. Man, Nature and Social Harmony 183
2. Personal and Community Ethics in Buddhism and Taoism 189
   2.1. Ethics of Individuals and Inter-relationships 189
   2.2. Ethics of Humanity and Universe 193
3. Ethical Responsibility in Buddhism and Taoism 195
   3.1. The Protection of Six Directions (Cha Disāpaṭicchādi) 195
      3.1.1. Ethical treatment between Parents and Children 196
      3.1.2. Ethical treatment between Teacher and Taught 197
      3.1.3. Ethical treatment between Husband and Wife 199
      3.1.4. Ethical treatment between Friends 200
      3.1.5. Ethical treatment between Employer and Employee 202
      3.1.6. Ethical treatment between Priests and Laity 203
   3.2. The Way of Filial Piety (Xiào Dào, 孝道) 204
      3.2.1. Ethical treatment to Ancestor and Spirit 205
      3.2.2. Ethical treatment to Family 208
4. Ethical View of Politics in Buddhism and Taoism 211
   4.1. Rule of Kingship (Rājadhamma) 211
   4.2. The Way of Governance (Zhì Dào, 治道) 217

CHAPTER 6: CLASSIFICATION AND CHARACTERISTICS OF ETHICS IN BUDDHISM AND TAOISM

1. The Moral Training in Buddhism and Taoism 224
1.1. Course of Training (Sikkhāpada) 224
1.2. Precept and Prohibition (戒禁) 229

2. Classification of Morality in Buddhism and Taoism 233
2.1. Ethical Precepts for Buddhist Laity 233
   2.1.1. Five Moral Precepts (Pañca Sīla) 233
   2.1.2. Eight Moral Precepts (Aṭṭha Sīla) 234
2.2. Ethical Code for Buddhist Saṃgha 236
   2.2.1. Moral Discipline of Sāmaṇera and Sāmaṇerī 236
   2.2.2. Moral Discipline of Sikkhamāna 237
   2.2.3. Moral Discipline of Bhikkhu 237
   2.2.4. Moral Discipline of Bhikkhunī 240
2.3. Ethical Precepts for Early Taoist Communities 242
2.4. Ethical Precepts for Lay Organizations 244
2.5. Ethical Precepts for Monastic Institutions 247
2.6. Ethical Precepts for Ritual Institutions 251

3. Classification of the Individual in Buddhism and Taoism 254
3.1. Ordinary Person (Puthujjana) 254
   3.1.1. The Blind Worldling (Andhaputhujjana) 254
   3.1.2. The Good Worldling (Kalyāṇaputhujjana) 255
3.2. Noble Person (Ariya Puggala) 256
   3.2.1. Stream Enterer (Sotāpanna) 257
   3.2.2. Once Returner (Sakadāgāmi) 258
   3.2.3. Non-returner (Anāgami) 258
   3.2.4. Worthy One (Arahanta) 259
3.3. The Person of Virtue (德人) 260
   3.3.1. The Sage (Shèngrén, 聖人) 260
   3.3.2. The Immortal (Xiānrén, 仙人) 262
   3.3.3. Real Person (Zhēnrén, 真人) 264
   3.3.4. Divine Person (Shénrén, 神人) 265
4. Intellectual Development and Ethical Attainment in Buddhism and Taoism

4.1. The State of Purification (Visuddhi) 266
4.2. The State of Liberation (Vimutti) 271
4.3. The Way of Internal Alchemy (Nèidān Dào, 内丹道) 273
  4.3.1. Construction of the foundations (Zhújī, 築基) 273
    4.3.1.1. The Function of Essence (Jīng, 精) 276
    4.3.1.2. The Function of Breath (Qì, 氣) 277
    4.3.1.3. The Function of Spirit (Shén, 神) 278
4.3.2. Refinement of Essence to Breath 279
4.3.3. Refinement of Breath to Spirit 280
4.3.4. Refinement of Spirit to Emptiness 281

CHAPTER 7: CONCLUSION

Similarities and Dissimilarities of Buddhist and Taoist Ethics 283
Summary and Observation 287

BIBLIOGRAPHY 295