ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

To begin with I thank God Almighty who has bestowed me with all the good gifts and facilities to carry out this thesis successfully.

I express an indebted sense of gratitude to Dr. P. Jyothi, my supervisor, guide and philosopher, for her suggestions which encouraged me to complete my thesis within the stipulated time and widen my sphere of knowledge. During the most difficult times while writing this thesis, she boosted up my morale and strengthened me.

I wish to express my heartfelt gratitude to Prof. V. Venkata Ramana, Dean, School of Management Studies for his concern, encouragement and valuable suggestions throughout the thesis work.

I am thankful to my Doctoral committee members Prof. V. Venkata Ramana, Prof. V. Sita and Dr. Merry Jessica for their valuable suggestions. And also I am thankful to all other faculty members and non-teaching staff of School of Management Studies.

I would like to thank University of Hyderabad for providing me with financial support through fellowship for my research work.

I also thank Prof. C. R. Rao, University of Hyderabad, Dr. Jayashree Raveendran, Institute of Public Enterprises, for their valuable guidance and suggestions in statistical analysis which shaped the findings of my research work.

I am very much grateful to members of the library of University of Hyderabad, ASCI, Institute of Public Enterprise, Osmania University, and computer centre of Central University of Hyderabad who have extended their fullest co-operation during my work.

I couldn’t have done this research without the help of Dr. P. V. Malleshwar, Guntur, Mr. P. Chandrashekar, Vishakhapatnam, Y.V. Sharma, and T. Vidya Sagar who helped me in identifying people during data collection. I would like to thank Mr. Bhanu Prakesh for helping me in SPSS calculation. In addition, I also would like to acknowledge particularly Mr. Koundenya, Mr. Karunakar and many people who have provided valuable assistance during data collection.

My Special thanks to Mr. Ramesh Nimmatoori, Dr. D Masthan, Dr. Sudha Vepa and C. Bhavani, whose continuous support during my research work is highly acknowledged.

I thank all my co-research scholars who always supported and encouraged during my research work.
My special thanks to my Parents for their continuous support and blessings.

I am greatly indebted to my husband Mr. R. Srinivasa Rao for his endless patience, flexibility and permanent love which made it possible to engage in this doctoral adventure and to complete it. A BIG THANKS to my son Virinchi who called often and rarely failed to ask me how my Course work and dissertation were going and always taken pride in my efforts. Without this encouraging family and supporting climate, this dissertation could not have been completed.

I also acknowledge that many others who have helped me in one way or the other. I am unable to thank everyone by name. This study is an outcome of their help in various ways. Heartfelt thanks to all of them.

“Gratitude is God honoring attitude”
