ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

With a deep sense of pleasure, I would like to extend my heartfelt gratitude to all those people who made the intricacies of this research work easier for me.

First and foremost I would like to express my gratitude to my supervisor, Professor Pallavi Bhatnagar, Department of Psychology. Without her support and supervision this research work could not have been possible. Her experience, knowledge, creativity, guidance and constructive criticism enriched this work. Despite her busy schedule, she was always there to encourage me and pushed me to strive for more.

I am also grateful to Professor P.C. Mishra, Head, Department of Psychology, for his encouragement and support.

I would like to thank the staff of library for their cooperation.

I am deeply indebted to my parents for their love, support, encouragement, motivation, guidance during the research. I would also like to thank my brother for his affection, support and motivation.

A special thanks to SWASTI parivaar (Dr. Jaya Chauhan and Kamini) for their affection, advices, and encouragement.

I would also like to thank Dr. Megha Singh for her advice and suggestions.

Last but not the least I am also grateful to the incharges of Protective Homes and children living there for cooperating with me. My interaction with these children not only added to my experiences but also brought forth some crude realities of life. Without the interest and participation of these children the present research could not have been possible.

Finally, I would like to thank all those who helped me in one or the other way in the completion of this work.
