2. LITERATURE REVIEW

2.1. Changing concept of health
2.2. Nature, Meaning and Effectiveness of Primary Health Care
2.3. Effectiveness of Primary Health care at the national and local levels
2.4. Comparisons at the national level
2.5. Out comes at the local level
2.6. Socio Economic Development and health status
2.7. Problems And Policy Perspectives
2.8. Public Vs Private: Need for government intervention

References

3. AN OVER VIEW OF THE WORKING OF PRIMARY HEALTH CARE SYSTEM: INDIA AND KERALA

3.1. Health Planning in India
3.2. Rural primary health care infrastructure
3.3. Health Manpower in Rural Primary Health Care Institutions
3.4. Kerala
   3.4.1. Health infrastructure
   3.4.2. Private sector plays a vital role
   3.4.3. High bed population ratio
   3.4.4. Decentralisation of planning
3.5. Preventive measures
   3.5.1. Working of preventive measures
   3.5.2. Spacing Method
3.6. Promotive measures
3.7. Sanitation: Access to toilet facilities

Reference
4. HEALTH SCENARIO OF KERALA

4.1. Prevailing explanatory theories
4.2. Health transition in Kerala
4.3. Mortality Transition
4.4. Infant Mortality Rate
4.5. Inter State Comparison
4.6. Birth rate
4.7. Life Expectancy at Birth

References

5. MORBIDITY TRANSITION IN RURAL KERALA

5.1. Morbidity as a measure of health
5.2. Meaning of morbidity
5.3. Morbidity profile of India
5.4. Morbidity profile of Kerala
5.5. Chronic Disease
5.6. Notes and references

References

6. EVALUATION OF PREVENTIVE AND PROMOTIVE MEASURES

6.1. A Profile of the study area
6.2. Structural development
   6.2.1. Bed population ratio
   6.2.2. Health man power
6.3. Preventive Measures
   6.3.1. Achievement of Family Welfare Program in Thrissur and Palakkad District

References
6.3.2. Technique wise achievement of sterilization 166
6.3.3. Temporary methods 167
6.3.4. Maternal and Child Health Care 175
6.3.5. IFA pregnant women and prophylaxis against nutritional anemia 182
6.4. Outcome Evaluation of preventive Measures 184
   6.4.1. Fertility related statistics 185
   6.4.2. Outcome evaluation of Maternal and child health care Program 193
6.5. Promotive measures 206
   6.5.1. Access to safe drinking water and sanitation: Kodungallur and Chittur 207
   6.5.2. Sanitation: Access to toilet facilities 209

7. ANALYSIS OF CURATIVE SERVICES OF PRIMARY HEALTH CARE SYSTEM 214
   7.1. Analysis of Curative Services of Government allopathic Institutions 215
      7.1.1. Total Morbidity 215
      7.1.2. Pattern of Morbidity 217
   7.2. Analysis of curative health care of primary health centers 233
   7.3. Patients treated in Private health care institution in Chittur and Kodungallur divisions 240
   7.4. Morbidity profile of the sample population 243
      7.4.1. Household expenditure on health care 246
      7.4.2. Utilisation of health care services 246

8. PERFORMANCE EVALUATION OF PRIMARY HEALTH CENTERS FROM THE BENEFICIARY POINT OF VIEW 250
   8.1. General information 251
   8.2. Operational Efficiency of Primary Health Care System 253
      8.2.1. Operational Efficiency of Primary Health Centers 253
      8.2.2. Rate of utilization by SES classes 258
      8.2.3. Reasons for not availing primary health centers 260
   8.3. Opinion regarding working the of Primary health center 267
8.4. Maternal and Child Health Care
  8.4.1. Delivery characteristics
  8.4.2. Type of institution opted for family planning
  8.4.3. Motivation for doing it
8.5. Summary

9. SUMMARY AND FINDINGS
  9.1. Preventive Measures
    9.1.1. Family Planning
    9.1.2. Maternal and child HealthCare Program
  9.2. Out come evaluation of family welfare program
  9.3. Promotive Measures
  9.4. Curative measures
  9.5. Pattern of morbidity
  9.6. Operational efficiency of the health centers
  9.7. Conclusion and Recommendations
  9.8. Scope for further research

BIBLIOGRAPHY

APPENDICES