CHAPTER - 5
CONSTRUCTION OF THESAURUS WITH A SLANT TOWARDS INDIAN SOCIAL SCIENCE LITERATURE

5.1 Introduction

This social science thesaurus has been constructed to make it as a tool for effectively indexing information resources in the field of social sciences, with a slant towards Indian social science literature. An attempt has been made to make it comprehensive, as far as possible, by identifying descriptors and non-descriptors with extensive study of literature published in major Indian social science journals between 1996 and 2015.

Social science(s) deals with the specific study of social phenomena. Seligman and Johnson (2006), has defined social sciences as "those mental or cultural sciences, which deal with the activities of the individual as a member of a group." According to Khan and Qureshi (1990), it is difficult to draw hard and fast lines of demarcation between the social sciences to keep them in watertight compartments. This demarcation holds good only at the academic level for study and research purposes, but in actual practice and in the world of reality, the artificial frontiers of disciplines fade away. As stated by Khan and Qureshi (1990) it is very difficult to define the domain of social sciences. According to Kaula (1990), there is no common consensus on its domain and what subjects comprise the social sciences. Therefore, it has always been a much debated issue since centuries.
This thesaurus, therefore, covers most of the subject areas which are falling under the main class social sciences as per the DDC (Dewey Decimal Classification) schedule. According to Dewey et al. (2011), the social sciences encompass disciplines of knowledge, such as social anthropology, sociology, political science, economics, law, public administration, social problems and welfare services, education, commerce, customs and folklore, etc.,. This thesaurus does not cover all the terms pertaining to law, as the subject discipline law itself is a vast area. However, major broad subject headings/descriptors which are most sought by social scientists and those are interdisciplinary have been incorporated in the thesaurus.

A major challenge faced while developing any thesaurus will be to identify large number of keywords and to establish their semantic relations with proper scope notes. This is true to social science discipline too, which like any other discipline goes beyond the main subject category as many of the subjects are interdisciplinary and also have linkages among themselves. In view of these observations, an attempt has been made to accommodate keywords from other disciplines which have linkages and relations with Indian social science literature.

Thesaurus construction requires very deep subject knowledge and happens to be a team work of subject experts and information scientists. Therefore, a number of thesauri such as ERIC Thesaurus (Education Resources Information Center), GESIS Thesaurus (German Social Science Infrastructure Services), HASSET (Humanities And Social Science Electronic Thesaurus), UNESCO thesaurus, etc., were consulted which in turn provided great insight to identify and derive the concepts in the context of Indian social science literature. Similarly, some of the abstracting and indexing journals such as Econlit, Sociological Abstract, etc., were also consulted for the present research work. Another equally important prerequisite for developing a thesaurus is the basic principle and a methodology. The basic guidelines for developing this thesaurus have been derived from the unique work of Soergel (1974).

An attempt has been made to include maximum keywords and this thesaurus approximately contains 4686 keywords out of which 3957 descriptors and 729 are non-descriptors with 1042 scope notes.

5.2 User Guide

The user guide provided in this sub-chapter contains instructions that need to be followed by subject indexer in their daily work for indexing social science literature.

This thesaurus is in single part and provides poly-aspect approach to the descriptors, non-descriptors and its semantic relations. This thesaurus was first developed using Tematres Software which uses MySQL, a Relational Database Management System (RDBMS) as the backend. This software has inbuilt features to provide various relations such as UF, BT, NT, RT, etc., to a descriptor so that the output can be taken in alphabetical sequence with proper semantic relations between the terms. Another relation, See Also (SA) has not been used in this thesaurus as this is a practice in most of the standard thesauri referred to, for the present study.
An attempt has been made to cover most of the concepts in thesaurus to make it exhaustive and exclusive, as far as possible, for Indian social science literature. This thesaurus for Indian social science literature is assumed to be the first of its kind as it has incorporated umpteen number of country specific keywords which are generally not found in other social science thesauri. Such an indigenous and county specific keywords have been derived, assessed and re-examined after detailed analysis of social science literature emanating from India since 1966. This thesaurus approximately contains 1500 indigenous keywords. An utmost care has been taken while deriving the subject keywords so that most of the concept pertaining to Indian social science literature could be covered. All the descriptors are listed in boldface. All the indigenous and country specific keywords have been given an appropriate scope note to assist the end user.

To avoid bulkiness and to maintain mnemonic quality, the thesaurus has incorporated many standard subdivisions which need to be used along with descriptors with two hyphens as mentioned below:

Foreign Direct Investment--India--2001-2015

From the above cited example, it may please be noted that, single hyphen is to be used in case of two historical periods. A single hyphen will also occur in case of descriptors which are hyphenated words such as Pre-primary Schools, E-Commerce, Anglo-Indians, Anti-Defection Law, etc. Use of single hyphen and double hyphens conforms to MARC21 standard as used in Library of Congress Subject Headings (LCSH).

A descriptor followed by a sub-heading (standard/geographic subdivision) shows that the descriptor is subdivided by standard subdivision or geographic location/place. For example:

Parliament--India

To avoid bulkiness of the thesaurus, it has not used proper nouns, geographical locations, name of professionals, etc.,. However, these can be used as per the local requirements.

5.2.1 Professions

Once again, to minimize the bulkiness of the thesaurus and to give flexibility, only few important professions have been included in the thesaurus as descriptors, some with cross references. However, any profession, not included in the thesaurus may be used as descriptors as per the local requirement with consistency. For example:

Carpenters, Drivers, Electricians, Plumbers, Librarians, etc.

5.2.2 Languages

This thesaurus has included 22 Indian Languages listed in the Eighth Schedule of the Constitution of India, as on December 01, 2007 as described in Wikipedia (2016). This thesaurus has not included all the Indian languages and their dialects and other languages of the world as descriptors. However, the name of any language not included in the thesaurus may be used as descriptors, with consistency, as per the local requirement. For example:

   Russian Language, Bhojpuri Language, German Language,
   Tulu Language, etc.

5.2.3 Geographic/Historic Sub-Division

   The name of any geographic location can be used as standard subdivision under any descriptor by putting double hyphen (--) between these two. The geographic location includes continent, sub-continent, country, state/province, city, economic zones, etc. For example:

   Planning Commission--India

   Trade Policy--Developing Countries

   Similarly, any historical period(s) may also be used as standard subdivision along with descriptor or along with geographical notations with double hyphen (--) in between these, as mentioned below:

   Five Year Plan--India--2007-2012

5.2.4 Committees and Commissions

   The Government of India, State Governments or any Government in general would appoint committees and commissions, from time to time, to seek recommendations on various issues. Some committees and commissions remain forever (Permanent Commissions) and some are dissolved after a specific time period. Therefore, this thesaurus does not include names of all the committees and commissions as descriptors. However, one can use names of the committees and commissions as standard subdivision under a descriptor by putting double hyphen (--) as mentioned below:

Ayodhya Dispute--Uttar Pradesh--Committees and Commissions

Communal Violence--Gujarat--Committees and Commissions

However, the end user may also use name of the committees or commissions along with the name of its chairman as descriptors as mentioned below:

Suresh Tendulkar Committee Report

Lakhdawala Committee Report

Dandekar Committee Report

Raghuram Rajan Committee Report

Shri Krishna Committee Report

Similarly, names of committees and commissions, not mentioned in this thesaurus, may also be used as descriptors as per the local requirements, as the committees in India are remembered by the name of the chairman, in most of the cases.

Names of some of the permanent committees such as Election Commission, Finance Commission, Pay Commission, Planning Commission, etc. have been used as descriptors. The end users may also use any other permanent commissions, missing in the thesaurus, as descriptors, as per the local requirement.

5.2.5 Laws and Legislations

Even though this thesaurus has used the subject discipline law as a descriptor, flexibility has been provided to make certain concepts explicit by adding standard subdivision Laws and Legislations along with main descriptors. However, this is not applicable to the main subject discipline Law and its narrow terms. The usage of standard subdivision Laws and legislations would be as follows.

Insurance--Laws and Legislations

Textile Industry--Laws and Legislations

It may please be noted that, the standard subdivision Laws and Legislations need to be used with discretion if certain descriptor has the concept of Law inbuilt in it. For example:

Labour Law

Copyright

5.2.6 Tribunals

The present research work has used certain well known tribunals, set up by the Government of India, as descriptors. Most of the tribunals constituted by the Government of India are permanent. However, some temporary tribunals would be dissolved after a particular time period. Therefore, names of those tribunals not included in this thesaurus may be used as descriptor as per the local requirement with consistency. However, an attempt has been made to include most important and well known tribunals as descriptors in this thesaurus. For example:

Debt Recovery Tribunal

National Green Tribunal

Railway Claims Tribunal

5.2.7 Scope Notes

A scope note means definition or explanation of descriptor to avoid or to minimize any ambiguity about the concept. The scope notes have been provided to most of the indigenous (country specific) descriptors to choose appropriate descriptor while indexing. These notes are available just below the respective descriptors, with which it is associated. For example:

Aadhaar Card

Agarbatti Industry

Beedi Industry

The present research work thesaurus has included around 1042 scope notes related to various indigenous concepts (descriptors).
5.3 Note on Indigenous and Country Specific Descriptors

As mentioned in chapter 1, Statement of Problem, there is no thesaurus to index Indian social science literature with appropriate country specific (Indigenous) subject descriptors. This thesaurus, in addition to many country specific descriptors, has added certain descriptors derived from Indian history and social groups.

5.3.1 Indian Dynasties (Descriptors derived from Indian History)

An extensive list of major Indian dynasties has been used as descriptors in this thesaurus and such names have been taken from Wikipedia (2016). Names of around 37 important dynasties, who ruled India between 1700 BC and 1826 AD, have been included as descriptors in this thesaurus. However, names of such dynasties missing in this thesaurus may be used as descriptors, as per the local requirement.

5.3.2 Princely States (Descriptors derived from Indian History)

An extensive list of specific Princely States, which were formed during the British rule in India as administrative divisions, has been identified and around 271 princely states have also been used as descriptors. Such names have been derived from the website http://www.worldstatesmen.org/India.htm/. However, names of those princely states missing in this thesaurus may be used as descriptors.

5.3.3 Tribes and Tribals (Descriptors derived from Social Classes)

An extensive list of specific tribes have been used as descriptors in this thesaurus and such names have been taken from the official website of Ministry of Tribal Affairs, Government of India (2016). Names of around 815 tribals have been included in this thesaurus as descriptors. However, names of those tribes missing in this thesaurus may be used as descriptors.
