ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Sometimes, it happens that you are not able to convey your feeling. This time I am passing through the same feeling. I have finished my thesis and it's time to show the gratitude to some most significant persons, without whom the work could not have been accomplished. Everyone is important for me in this sense. So, to whom I start, it is the biggest problem what I am facing now. But I am happy that at this moment, I don't need to follow the research methodology. First of all I would like to show my deep regards to my elder brother. Without his support, I could not be here. Because of his support, I managed to stay in Delhi for pursuing my higher studies. The gravity of his support is not letting me to say so that I am speechless. Still, my best wishes are always with him. If I talk about parents, then nothing will be sufficient because their support is priceless. My mother's emotional support made me stronger. So, I want to show gratitude to my parents who sent me to JNU. They have been supporting me from all side either emotionally or physically or financially, they stood behind me. They are like my backbone. My father is the source of strength. He robust me whenever I get disturbed. Whenever I get upset regarding my study, they always inspire me to fight against the adverse situation. Same way, my sister, sister in law, brother in law stands behind me to give me unconditional support.

If I talk about my friends, the first name comes in my mind is my dearest friend ‘Surjya Kamal Borah’. We are classmates since M.Phil, since then he has been helping and, even, guiding also. He has been helping to remove my shortcomings regarding my methodology of study. Present time, whenever I face any problem, first of all I discuss to him. I must be helped. I have not been disappointed by him ever. He is great advisor and my counselor also. I pray to Saibaba to give him all success, which he deserves. My best wishes are always with him. I would like to thank my other friend ‘Megha’, who helped me regarding the language and computer techniques. Her information remained useful to save my time on internet and typing also. I am thankful to my other friends also Madhu, Smita, Bhavna, Yogesh and Anita for giving me mental support.
The supports, which are given by my family and friends, are incomplete without the guidance of the masters of the school Kashmir Śaiva, which I have been studying. I touched this area of Kashmir Śaiva in M.Phil. and am pursuing in Ph.D. also. But as far as my experience shows that Kashmir Śaiva philosophy is a multi-dimensional school for which theories are overlapping to each other. The terms are also very technical and complex. So the guidance of the masters is the ‘first condition’ for the study of this philosophical school. The Self-study is important but for the beginner of Kashmir Śaiva, a competent teacher is necessary. That’s why after the confirmation of Ph.d Topic, I visited Varanasi my home town and with the short visit of 5-6 month, I tried to study the texts with the scholars. First of all, I would like to mention the name of late Gautam Chakravarty, student of Gopinath Kaviraj. Even, at the age of 90, he was very enthusiastic to teach. And I found the great opportunity of his supervision. He taught me few chapters of Tantrāloka. Same way, the versatile scholar Braj Ballabh Dwivedijī gave me some lectures. His teaching methodology gave me new understanding. Bettina Baumer, Mark Dyczkowski also taught me. Bettina Madam taught me Pratyabijñāḥdayam and I used to meet her time to time and took advises which are always helpful for me. Mark Sir illustrated general conceptions of the Kashmir Śaiva philosophy. I cannot forget his first lecture. That was amazing lecture because it gave me the foundation, which I needed, whereupon I have been developing my vision. The versatile scholar is Navjivan Rastogi Sir. Again I am temporarily deprived of speech by strong emotions. The way he teaches, clears all doubts. His lectures, notes, books helped me to deepen my vision. His teaching methodology is very effective. The way, he inspires the students, and me, oblige me to see him as one of the most respectful persons in my life. His fatherly behavior makes me comfortable every time. I wish for his prosperous health. I am obliging to my guide ‘Rajnish Mishra’ Sir, who suggested such a challenging topic for my research. Without his guidance and supervision and cooperative attitude, I could not accomplish this task. I will be always grateful to him for unconditional support. The thesis could not have been written without him, who not only served as my supervisor but also encouraged and challenged me throughout my academic program. He and the other faculty members, Dr. Ram Natha Jha, Santosh Shukla, Shashi Prabha Kumar, H.R. Mishra, Girish Nath Jha did not let me get relief by never accepting less than my best efforts. I thank them all.
Along all these persons, I am deeply thankful to all Devi and Devatas, who give me strength to fight with adverse situations, because five years is not short span. For accomplishing the thesis, I felt the necessity for the inner strength. I maintain keeping my spirit higher because Saibaba is the source of strength to me. I firmly believe that he gives me patience and inner power and he will be always with me. I pray him to give me power to my further studies and challenges, because degree of Ph.D. is not the end. It is the dawn of study which will be continuing till the end of my life.
