Select Bibliography

Primary Sources

Novels

- -----. The Sword and the Sickle. South Asia Books, 1984

• -----. The Cat and Shakespeare. Delhi: Orient Paperbacks, 1996.

Secondary Sources

Books

• Ardener, Edwin. ‘Belief and the Problem of Women’, in S. Ardener, perceiving women (note 28 above).

• Dutt, Romesh Chander. The Lake of Palms. Macmillan & Co, 1933.

• Forbes, Geraldine. Women in Modern India. New Delhi: Foundation Books.

• Fourier, Charles. quoted in Bell and Offen, Women, the Family and Freedom, VOL- I.

• Gorsky, Susan. The Gentle Doubters-Images of Women in English Women’s Novels. 1840-1920.

• Milton, John. Paradise Lost. Book IV.

Schwartz, Alice. "The Radicalization of Simone de Beauvoir," trans. by Helen Eustis, Ms.1:1 (1972),

Journals

• Ashtiani, Tarbiat-l nisvan, (Amin, The Liberation of Women)

• Raine, Kathleen. World Literature Today.

• “Raja Rao: Kanthapura” Meg-07: Indian English Literature, Delhi: Indira Gandhi National University, October.2003.

• ‘Some Indian Authors in Candid Retrospect’ Writers Workshop Miscellany, Eight, Calcutta: 1961.

• “The Sources of Protest in My Novels”. The Literary Criterion XVII, VOL- 4, 1983.

Papers

Articles in Newspapers/Magazines

• Rajendra Lal Mitra, Cited in The Hindoo Patriot, 25th July, 1887.

• “The Emergence of Hero in a Modern Indian Novel”, The Illustrated Weekly of India. 9 December, 1956.

Interviews