ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

In the completion of present research work many people helped me directly or indirectly. It was impossible to complete the work without kind co-operation and assistance of students, teachers, parents and my colleagues. It goes without saying that the credit for its completion and success goes to all those individuals who honestly and willingly gave their responses. My sincere gratitude to them.

I herewith acknowledge with deep sense of gratitude, the assistance of eminent psychologist, my research guide, Dr. D.S. Janbandhu, Head, Department of Psychology, V.N. Institute of Arts & Social Sciences, Nagpur, for his tremendous and generous help, and valuable guidance. His painstaking efforts in suggesting, clearing and improving the quality of this work is beyond description. Without his suggestions, encouragement, instructive guidelines and financial assistance, it would have been impossible for me to complete this work. Financial assistance from guide to student is very rare today; but for the greatness and kind heartedness of Dr. D.S. Janbandhu, I shall always be indebted to him throughout my life.

I express my sense of gratitude to Dr. P.K. Prabhu, Assistant Director, Western Regional Centre, ICSSA, Mumbai for availing Study Grant Facility for this research work.

I am also thankful to Librarian, Jawaharlal Nehru Library, University of Mumbai, Kalina, for his kind co-operation and generous help in collecting relevant research references.
Thanks are also due to the Principals of schools and Junior Colleges, who generously granted me permission to collect data from their institutions.

As is true, in my research endeavour, the credit for successful completion of this research is shared by all those who have contributed to it directly or indirectly. Among them share of my wife and children is priceless.

Lastly, not formality but as a duty, I thank Shri Mendhi for neat and errorless typing of the thesis.
