Works Cited

Primary Sources

---. Fracture. Pune: Jyotsna Prakashan, 2013. Print

Secondary Sources: Articles from Journals, Periodicals, Anthologies and other miscellaneous sources such as Catalogues and websites

Christenbury, Leila. “Natural, Necessary, and Workable: The Connection of Young Adult Novels to the Classics”. "Reading Their World: The Young Adult Novel in the Classroom. Web.

---. Interview by Rudroneel Ghosh. “Children’s Literature is not just entertainment, it’s a vital tool.” Times of India. April 1, 2011. Web. 5 March 2014.

Seth, Lerer. Children's Literature: A Reader's History, from Aesop to Harry Potter.

Stephens, Jonathan. “Young Adult: A Book by Any Other Name...Defining the Genre.” The ALAN REVIEW, no. 35.1 (Fall 2007): 40-41. Web. 5 June, 2015

Vandergrift, Kay. “A Feminist Perspective on Multicultural Children’s Literature in the Middle Years of The Twentieth Century.” Scool of Communication,

“Female Protagonist and Beyond: Picture Books for Future Feminists.”

