ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

At the outset I would like to offer my profound regards to Professor D. Dakshina Murthy, M.Com., Ph.D., (New York), Dean, Faculty of Commerce, Nagarjuna University, my revered teacher, for his guidance and encouragement. In fact, no words would suffice to express my gratitude to him whose sustained encouragement made this study exposable. My grateful thanks are due to Dr. G.N. Brahmanandam, M.Com., Ph.D., Reader in Commerce and Business Administration, Nagarjuna University, for his valuable suggestions in the successful completion of the study. I am sincerely obliged to Dr. V.V. Subba Reddy, Head of the Department of History, SGHR-MCMR Degree College, Guntur and other colleagues for their constant encouragement.

I am beholden to the authorities of Nagarjuna University, particularly to Sri S. Koteswara Rao, Librarian and Sri L. Seshagiri Rao, Assistant Librarian of the University Library for their valuable services. My thanks are also due to the staff of District Industries Centre, Ongole and all the respondents whose detailed responses have helped the study. Finally, my thanks are due to all those who have directly or indirectly helped me in completing the study successfully.
