ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is an extremely difficult task to write this traditional column of acknowledgement, and I am at a loss of appropriate words to express my deep sense of gratitude to all those individuals who have made immeasurable contribution to the preparation of this work.

First and foremost I would like to gratefully acknowledge my indebtedness to Dr. Debesh Chakraborty, Professor (Retired), Department of Economics, Jadavpur University for his wonderful guidance and supervision of this piece of work. Without his invaluable contribution and constant inspiration, it would not be possible for me to finish this thesis.

I am also indebted and grateful to Dr. Sushil Kumar Halder, Associate Professor, Department of Economics, Jadavpur University for his constant guidance, cooperation and support during the preparation of this work.

I would like to thank the Indian council of Social Science Research, New Delhi, for funding this research work. I also express my sincere thanks to Census Library, NSSO Library, Indian statistical Institute (Kolkata) Library, Centre for Studies in Social Sciences, and Central Statistical Organization Library for the services rendered by these organizations. Finally, I must acknowledge the facilities afforded by the authority of Jadavpur University towards successful completion of the thesis.

I am grateful to my parents, Sri Satya Sadhan Kundu and Smt. Prativa Kundu, and parents-in-law, Sri Tushar Kumar Mukhopadhyay and Smt. Shyamali Mukhopadhyay for their constant encouragement and blessings to carry out my research work. Also a great source of constant encouragement to me is my brother Sanjoy Kundu, and my sister-in-law Tulika Kundu. I do not know the proper word to thank my husband Shirsendu Mukhopadhyay who has been my great source of inspiration and active support.

I acknowledge the help extended by my friends and colleagues particularly Dr. Sabari Bandhyapadhyay, Dr. Chandralekha Ghosh, Dr. Kasturi Mitra, Smt. Paramita Dasgupta, Sri Gokul Biswas (Librarian, NSSO), and other research scholars of the Department of Economics of Jadavpur University.

Last but not the least, I must thank my one year old little son, Sri Adhyayan Mukhopadhyay, for granting me a lot of time at the cost of his pleasure to complete my dissertation.
