Acknowledgements

This research work could not have been completed without the valuable help and cooperation of many people. Therefore it is my duty at this point to acknowledge all of them with sincere gratitude. It is a pleasure to thank many people who made this thesis possible. Firstly, I want to express gratitude for the Almighty and my Guruji for showering blessings upon me. It is a matter of great pleasure and privilege to have worked under the guidance of my research supervisor Prof. S. Paul Malhotra, Dean of Humanities and Head, Department of English and Modern European Languages, Banasthali University, Rajasthan for his support and encouragement during this project. At many stages in the course of this research project I benefited from his advice, particularly so when exploring new ideas. His positive outlook and confidence in my research inspired me and gave me confidence. In spite of his busy schedule, he went through my writing meticulously and offered his valuable suggestions and comments which have assisted me greatly in making this project possible. Prof. S. Paul Malhotra, have set an example of excellence as a researcher, mentor, instructor, and role model.

I would especially like to thank my parents and my brothers for the love, support, and constant encouragement. I am thankful to Banasthali University, Rajasthan, for providing necessary facilities during my stay in the campus. I am also thankful to all the librarians at Banasthali University, British Council Library, Delhi University, Allahabad University, Kurukshetra University, Maharshi Dayanand University, Guru Jambheshwar University for providing necessary facilities of their respective libraries needed for this work.
Finally, I would like to thank everybody who has helped me directly or indirectly for the success of this work.
