6. SCOPE FOR FURTHER WORK

The future directions of the present work are listed as follows.

- The present study has focused in identifying the employability status of students graduating in engineering. Study could be extended towards identifying the employability status of post graduates.

- In addition to Private Self-Financing Engineering Colleges and Private Deemed Universities, the future study could also involve autonomous educational institutions and other state/central government universities of the country.

- Faculty members/ placement officers of educational institutions could also be involved as the respondents in order to study their perceived opinion towards employability of students.

- The study could proceed one step beyond and concentrate on the “employability and survival” of graduates getting placed through on – campus recruitment drive.
