Pursuit of academic research for a novice is a herculean task because one is to tread on untrodden path where there is possibility of getting lost into the maze of knowledge contained in the plethora of books, journals and documents. We are indebted to Prof. M.L. Sondhi of School of International Studies, JNU for introducing a course in Peace and Conflict Studies, a discipline still in its embryonic stage in India. But for his constant encouragement the present work could not have seen the light of the day.

I owe an intellectual debt to Prof. R.C. Sharma whose valuable comments and suggestions on the draft proved useful in adding geopolitical dimensions to the analysis and assessment.

I am also intellectually beholden to Professor P.A.N. Murthy, Dean, Prof. Parimal Kumar Das, Professor K.P. Misra, Prof. K.P. Saksena, Prof. Pushpesh Pant and Dr. K.S. Jawatker all from the School of International Studies, JNU. I am also grateful to Prof. Rasheeduddin Khan of the Centre for Political Studies, JNU for his encouragement.
I am grateful to Prof. G. Ram Reddy, Vice-Chancellor, Indira Gandhi National Open University, New Delhi for his valuable comments and cooperation. My gratitude also goes to Prof. S.P. Verma and Prof. R.S. Morkhandikar, Director, School of Social Sciences of the same University for their benign cooperation. I cannot fail to record my sincere gratitude to Dr. G.S. Rao of the same University for his valuable suggestions at various stages of the present study. My thanks go to Prof. Amravati Malappa, Head of the Department of Political Science, Gulbarga University, Gulbarga, Karnataka, for his sustained interest and encouragement. I am also grateful to Dr. Sudhir Jacob George of N.B.H.U., Shillong.

I have also been greatly benefitted from the rich political and diplomatic insights of Shri Veerendra Patil, former Union Minister and presently Member of Parliament. He constantly encouraged me throughout the course of my studies. I am grateful to Narayan Swamy, M.P., Oscar Fernandes, M.P., Jaswant Singh, M.P., who were kind enough to enlighten me on various aspects of subcontinental politics.

I express my special thanks to Shri Romesh Bhandari, former Foreign Secretary, who provided me useful material and valuable comments. I am also beholden to former Ambassadors Khub Chand, G.J. Malik and Rikhi Jaipal, who were kind enough to spare their valuable time and offered critical but useful comments on the various aspects of this study.

I am grateful to Prof. A. Rahman, former Director of NISTAD who was kind enough to award me a Senior Research Fellowship during my studies. My thanks go to Dr. Ashok Jain, present Director of NISTAD and Mr. Qureshi of the same Institute for their benign cooperation and encouragement.

I acknowledge with gratitude the scholarship granted by the Karnataka Government during my academic pursuits in the School of International Studies, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi.

No words are sufficient to repay the debt which I owe to my parents whose patience, constant inspirations and sustained interest not only boosted my morale but kept the intellectual flame aloft. But for them, I would have succumbed to failure. I am equally indebted to my wife Keya Gopal - whose diligent cooperation and monumental patience throughout the period sustained my morale. She took pains in translating for me the editorials in regional and vernacular press.
I owe special thanks to the Director and the staff of National Archives of India, New Delhi for making available to me the historical records. I am also grateful to the Librarians and the staff members of the Sapru House (ICWA) Library, IGNOU Library, American Centre Library and the Library of Ministry of External Affairs, all located in New Delhi. Thanks are also due to Shri Chand Sharma for typing and retyping the manuscript.
