Acknowledgements

I am most grateful to my supervisor, Prof. Dilbagh Singh for the constructive and critical guidance, I received from him during the last four years. Working under Prof. Dilbagh Singh has definitely improved my understanding of the subject and also broadened my outlook.

I should also be grateful to Madam Satyender Kaur and Sir for bearing with my initial hiccups and for their immense support and words of encouragement over innumerable cups of tea whenever I visited them for guidance and perhaps also for the reassuring words. This will always be part of my good memories.

I must express my gratitude for Dr. H.S. Chawla who ignited my interest in the Sikh Studies and was always more than willing to share his knowledge as well as his treasure of rare books with me. I am especially indebted to Sardarni Surinder Kaur who helped me in sharpening my linguistic skills and with the transcription of sources in a limited time span.

I owe a great deal to the staff of S.G.T.B. Khalsa Library, Mr. Anana and Alka Madam of Bhai Vir Singh Sahitya Sadan Library, Punjabi University Main Library, Patiala and the Teen Murti Library, New Delhi. The functionaries of all these institutions were always very helpful and went out of their way in finding the relevant reading material with a smile.

Amongst the family members, I would like to especially remember and pay my homage to Harish Uncle, who left us for his heavenly abode in November last year. I was most fortunate to spend time with him in his last days as I consider him my silent teacher who taught me the true meaning of generosity and goodness.

I must remember with gratitude the lessons I learnt from the two women of substance - my mother Smt. Kamal Kaushi and my mother-in-law, Ms. Anjana Chawla, both of whom, with their struggles in their respective lives, exemplified the pivotal roles, women can play in shaping their families. Besides, I am grateful to my late father-in-law and my loving Dad, for their open-hearted support and encouragement for pursuing higher studies. Thanks to all of you!
Special mention must be made of my Gogi bhaiya (Mr. V.B. Arora as he is known formally) who undertook the task of what he calls, 'reading aloud' my thesis. All this while my bhabhi (Dr. Prabha Arora) not only served me delicious food but also borne through the loss of their family time on several weekends with a smile. I owe thanks to my elder sister Mridula for years of moral support and mentoring. I must make a mention of my friend Deepali as both of us could confide in the "low-phases" associated with the research.

I am thankful to my little daughter Snigdha who always wished that my Ph.D. could be completed at the earliest, so that we could spend more time together. Thanks, Snigdha.

Lastly, my special thanks are owed to my life-partner Satyakam who has borne through my mood-swings after my day-long readings about disturbing topics like female infanticide. Thanks for your support in the form of 'Multani Humour'.

Last but not the least I owe special thanks to my colleagues at S.G.T.B. Khalsa College and the University of Delhi for granting me the study leave.

Pratibha

(Pratibha)