Acknowledgements

This thesis is materialised with the constant support, encouragement, help and co-operation of many. I am very grateful to Prof. Prakash C. Jain, my supervisor, who supported me at various junctures of the process and spent a lot of time in correcting my drafts. The critical observations and comments he made have greatly contributed in shaping my views and sharpening my ideas. I also extend my thanks to Prof. A. K. Dubey, respected Chairperson of the Centre for his co-operation and support. I am very thankful to Prof. Anwar Alam for his precious contributions to the completion of this work.

I am thankful to the faculty of my Centre who supported me throughout. My interaction with them has helped me to develop an in-depth understanding of the dynamics of Egyptian Economy, Polity and Society. I would like to specially mention Prof. Gulshan Dietl, Prof. Girijesh Pant and Prof. A. K. Pasha for their support and concerns for me through out my JNU life. Prof. Pant, through his classes and writings, was a source of inspiration for me to choose this topic. I do remember the interest that Prof. Pasha taken to send me to Cairo for presenting a paper. The encouragement I got from Prof. Gulshan helped me in finalising the thesis at the earliest.

It was a great experience to visit different libraries in search of source materials both in India and in Egypt. I am grateful to the librarians and staff of JNU Central Library and Exim Bank Library, Teenmoorthi Library, ICWA Library, IIFT Library, ISI Library and CSD Library. Libraries of Centre for Development Studies, Trivandrum and University of Calicut and Mahatma Gandhi University were also very useful. I thank Librarians and staff of Cairo University Giza, American University Cairo, and also CAPMAS, CDC, NIP and Maulana Azad Center for Indian Culture, all at Cairo, for their co-operation and help in collecting relevant data and other source materials for this study.

With great love and respect, I remember my former teachers K. M. Seethi, A. K. Ramakrishnan, K. R. Singh and V. V Muraleedharan who inspired me a lot. My discussions and debates with them were highly enlightening and were very useful for my thesis. I also thank all my colleagues at the Sikkim University for their support in completing this study.

My dear friends Mr. Reji K. Joseph and Mr. Happymon Jacob were a source of help, support and encouragement ever since my Masters' days. I am grateful to them for the time they spend with me for fruitful discussions and for the useful comments and criticisms they made at every stage of this work. I am thankful to my friends M.H. Illias, Ginu Zackaria, Sachin and Beryl Anand who have shown great interest to read the chapters and comment on them.
I remember thankfully Prof. Ola Khawaga and Prof. Faraq Faraq of Centre for Economic and Political Studies, Cairo University for their help and co-operation in finding out useful source materials on Egypt and their valuable suggestions. Mr. Sahibe Alam, Indian student at Cairo University, needs special thanks for his help during my stay at Cairo.

I am grateful to Dr. Anwar Jaffry, Rajeshri, Viswambhar Nath and other friends at Ekalavya and Samavesh in Bhopal who facilitated my study trips to the remote villages of Madhya Pradesh. Their academic knowledge as well as grass root level experiences have helped me to develop a proper understanding on various social developmental issues in the rural areas of India.

I am thankful to all my colleagues at the Calicut University - Sethunath, Vincent, Sangeetha, Yusuf, Anand, Prof. Nambiar and others who made my days at Calicut University memorable. Interactions with my dear students at the Department of West Asian Studies, Calicut University were extremely useful in developing my ideas. I thank all my students, especially Rajeevan, Abid, Geethanandan, Nijeesh, Aneesha, Rajeeesh and Lirar for their love and support. I also thank my colleagues in the Department of Cultural Affairs, Kerala and the Kerala State Higher Education Council.

I am grateful to my fellow classmates and friends at JNU - Suhail, Eldho, Smitha, Kishore, Sudhakaran, Dimpi, Abhilashbabu, Pormima, Tun, Surjeet, Krishnakumar, Vinooja, Abhilash, Sunilbabu, sunil, Aneish, Titto, Gibu and Faisal for their constant support at various stages of my thesis work.

Special thanks go to my dear sister Pinky and brothers Jimmy and Shaju. Their moral and material support has helped me a lot in completing this thesis. I extend my thanks to all other members of my family - Amma, Chachan, Bincy chechy, Aanymol, Anumol, Liby, Reena, Saji, Unnimol, Treesamol and Emman.

I would like to thank the Department of Education, Government of Kerala and UGC for awarding me scholarships for pursuing my research at the JNU.

Finally, a word of thank to Reena, the one who is coming to my life soon, with lots of love, support and encouragement.
