ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The completion of this thesis has been an achievement for me. It would not have been accomplished if there were no help rendered to me by a lot of people. The Center of Social Medicine & Community Health (JNU) has played an important role in shaping up my perspective regarding the health of the people. Coming to this center for the M.Phil/Ph.D programme was an eye opener for me with regards to the understanding of health.

I take this opportunity to thank my mentor and supervisor Dr. Sanghmitra Acharya who always extended constant support and advice during the course of my dissertation and since my first year in M.Phil. She has been a constant source of inspiration to me as she epitomizes hard work and sincerity in all her efforts. More than being a good teacher she has been a person of high quality which has inspired me in my endeavour. She has shown immense patience with me all these years.

Her inputs and criticism are equally valued.

I am also grateful to the teachers of the centre for all the support and encouragement they have had for me. Mr. Dinesh, of the documentation centre has also been of enormous help. He made it possible for me to read many relevant books by allowing me to keep them beyond the stipulated time.

I am grateful to Anu dada for bringing me out of the wilderness of Kurseong and giving me the opportunity to be part of the esteemed Jawaharlal Nehru University. Anu dada, thank you very much.

I take this opportunity to show my gratitude to my parents. They have been the best possible parents. They have been very selfless in supporting me. They have always installed in me the value of education. I hope this work reflects the inspiration I got from them.

I also thank Bidhya didi, Bibu and Lokesh for their love and encouragement they have given me. I am also very grateful to the rest of my family members for their love and support.

All my friends whose names if I write will fill more than a few pages have also been a constant source of encouragement to me and I am thankful to them.

I am thankful to University Grants Commission for conferring on me the prestigious 'Rajiv Gandhi National Fellowship,' which helped me immensely in pursuing my academic interest which otherwise would have been very difficult.

I am forever indebted to my wife for all the help she has provided. She has been an inspiration for me. She has been instrumental in the completion of this thesis. This thesis would have not taken this shape if it were not for her constant debate on the topic as well as the editing responsibility she took. I owe her much more than these few words. Thank you very much.

I take sole responsibility for any error arising in this thesis.
