Preface

Professor Kuldeep Mathur not only supervised the present research work, he in fact introduced me to an area of enquiry which gradually opened new horizons as the work progressed. I put on record my indebtedness to him for creating and sustaining interest in an area of research which, I believe, would stay with me in my future research work. I am also grateful to Dr. Sudipta Kaviraj (formerly of CPS, JNU), Professor Mohit Bhattacharya (V.C., Burdwan University), Professor Satish Saberwal, (CHS, JNU), and Professor T.N. Madan (IEG, Delhi) for their suggestions, criticisms and the active interest they took in my research work.

I received assistance from the members of the staff of the JNU Library, National Library, Calcutta, the library of the Centre for Studies in Social Sciences, Calcutta, Nehru Memorial Library, New Delhi, and the library of the Indian Institute of Public Administration, New Delhi. Sujan Chakraborty extended all possible help during my field work. The district administration of South 24 Parganas was extremely cooperative. Special thanks are due to D.P. Patra, the District Magistrate, N.K. Singh, the then Superintendent of Police, Arun Kumar Gupta, the then Additional Superintendent of Police, and Anjan Ganguli and Subrata Mukherjee, Inspectors of Police.

In the course of the research work, valuable comments and criticisms of friends were quite helpful. It is difficult to mention the names of all of them. But those with whom, I interacted regularly are, Anindya, Asheema, Sudipta, Shamita, Partha, Arun, Rajkumar, Soumya and Dilip.

I also gratefully acknowledge the encouragement and forebearance of the members of my family, without whose support this research work would not have been possible.

Bhupal Singh Bisht rendered an efficient service by typing out the thesis in a very short period of time.

SUKANTA ACHARYA

Place: JNU, New Delhi.
Date: January, 1994