BIBLIOGRAPHY

5. Annual Reports and website of Wipro, TCS, Infosys and Satyam Computer.

38. Coulson-Thomas, C., “Developing competent directors and effective boards”,

BIBLIOGRAPHY

40. Czarnecki, A. (1995, February 27). Some HRIS will link competencies with compensation and performance; no matter how you do it, it’s still a lot of work.

58. Foyster, J. (1990), Getting to Grips with Competency-Based Training and Assessment, TAFE National Centre, Adelaide.

74. Harzallah M., Vernadat F. (2002), IT-based Competency Modeling and Management: from Theory to Practice

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Reference</th>
<th>Author(s)</th>
<th>Title and Source</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

universities”, Paper presented at the SRHE Conference, Edinburgh, 12th-14th December.

138. Rubin, B. (1985),

139. Schroeder, H.,

140. Scollay, M. (1999),

“India’s Strategy of IT-led Growth.” Center for the Advanced Study of India: Philadelphia, PA.

142. Shiner, D.V. (1988),

143. Shrivastava, P. and Grant, J.H. (1985),

144. Smith, M.B. (1968),

“Competence and ‘mental health’ problems in conceptualising human effectiveness”, in Heath, D.H. (Ed.), *Maturity and Competence: A transcultural view, Gardner Press, New York, NY.

152. Tschang, T., A. Amsden and ‘Measuring technological upgrading in the Indian

