ACKNOWLEDGMENT

I would like to express my sincere gratitude and respect to my supervisors and guides Dr. Gulab Jha, Professor of Foreign Languages and Dr. Dilip Borah, Head of Department of MIL & LS, Gauhati University for their invaluable advice, criticism and continuous encouragement during my research work. Their guidance and encouragement throughout the course of this study have been of great value for me. I am deeply indebted to these two honourable teachers without whose blessings the present form of this thesis would not have been possible.

In the same breath and for the same reasons, I am indebted to the Head, The Department of Foreign Languages, Prof. Kandarpa Das, who guided me in carrying out my research work with his suggestion and sympathetic criticisms.

I should like to record here my gratitude for suggestion and support to the prominent teachers such as Prof. Birinchi K. Medhi, Deptt. of Anthropology, Gauhati University, Dr. Bibha Bharali, Deptt. of Assamese, Gauhati University, Dr. Banani Chakravorty, Deptt. of Assamese, Gauhati University.

All my colleagues have been extremely supportive and special mention must be made of Pranita Baishya, Principal of Pub Bongsor College, Pacharia, who encouraged and supported me to finish my work.

Throughout my research work the constant support of all my friends and well-wishers have helped me immensely. I thank the Almighty God for His benevolence. My thanks are also due to Amal Jyoti Das for typing this manuscript.

My deepest debt goes to my family members especially my husband Maniram Kalita, my little daughter (Gungun) and helpers of the house. I would like to take this opportunity to thank my brother Tridib Bharali for help me in arranging and compiling my thesis. I thank my parents, father-in-law and mother-in-law, sister-in-law, aunty who are more hopeful of a bright future for me than I can bring myself to be. Their belief and faith in me have made me indebted to them forever.

(HIMADRI BHARALI)