ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is always difficult to make a proper list of all those people to whom one is indebted. But it is my pleasant duty to thank …

My supervisor, Professor Kapil Kapoor for allowing me the freedom to work in a relatively uncharted area of research. In all these years that I have known him, he has always managed to surprise me with his wit, his knowledge and his kindness.

My University, which taught me everything I needed to know.

All the teachers in the Department of Linguistics and English for always being there when I needed them.

My parents for loving me and letting me be.

My wonderful family (uncles, aunts, cousins, nieces and nephews, who have always thought me slightly crazy) for believing in me.

My sister for helping me with the dreadful task of proof-reading. She also knows how much I love her.

My in-laws for being so understanding.

My employers, Indraprastha College for Women and the University of Delhi, for granting me a year’s study leave in order to finish my work.

My colleagues and friends for never refusing help.

The memory of Sudesh. Her intellectual depth, vitality and generosity will always inspire me.

I also wish to thank the Librarians and Staff of:

Guwahati University Library, Department of Historical and Antiquarian Studies, Guwahati, District Library, Guwahati, Jawaharlal Nehru University Library, Sahitya Akademi Library, Indraprastha College for Women Library (especially the History section), Central Research Library, University of Delhi, National Archives of India, New Delhi, Nehru Memorial Library, New Delhi.

I especially wish to thank Mr. Malik of J.N.U. for being the kind of person he is and for making me realise anew what loving books is all about.

Rawat ji of the Centre of Linguistics and English. I am sure he knows why.

And finally my typists, Vijay ji, Lalit ji, Ashok and Vishal for helping me wrap up my work on time.
