ACKNOWLEDGMENT

I am deeply indebted to my supervisor Prof. C.P. Chandrasekhar. This work, as it stands, would not have been possible, but for his patient and persistent support. His vast understanding on the subject matter, and the consistent guidance provided the much needed support throughout this whole work. He was handy in tackling various tricky situations which I was put through, during crucial junctures of the work.

It is also a great pleasure to thank my M.Phil. supervisor, Dr. Earnest Williams (Head, Department of Economics, P.S.G. College of Arts and Sciences, Coimbatore), who was a great inspiration for me to carry out this work. His vision on this area was the starting point of my interest in this field of economics, and his encouragement enhanced my confidence in carrying forward this work.

During my research in the Centre For Economic Studies and Planning (CESP), I have been very fortunate in developing personal interactions with some of my teachers, who have meant a lot to me. I thank Prof. Abhijit Sen, Dr. Jayati Ghosh and Dr. Arun Kumar for their guidance and affection. I had all freedom to approach them when ever I was in problems and always found peace.

I also warmly remember the CESP Family, an experience which is parallel to none. I shall be missing this cordial atmosphere all my life. The office staff (Rajaji, Bishtji and Bacha Singh) helped me wholeheartedly, whenever the occasion arose.

I am deeply indebted to the librarians of the Delhi Stock Exchange, who provided assistance in completing the colossal task of data collection and collation required for this work. The period of eight months which I spent there on a daily basis was never one of tension, as I always had their cooperation. My special thanks to Mr. Ram Babu and Mr. Shyam Babu for making the data collection, a reality. I would also like to express my thanks to the Librarians of the Institute for Financial Management and Research (IFMR, Madras), Business Line (Madras), Ratan Tata Library (Delhi University), I.I.T., Kanpur, S.P. Jain Centre for Management Studies (South Campus), Institute for Studies in Industrial Development (ISID, New Delhi) and the Centre For Development Studies (CDS, Thiruvananthapuram).

I received a lot of help from close friends. My heartfelt thanks goes to Jibby Thomas, P. V. Ramana, Venkatesh Nayak, Raman Reet, Fr. Jose Kalapura (SJ), Praveen Singh, Parag Wakhis, M. V. Srinivasan, Sanil Kumar, Biplove Choudhary, Sudhakar Reddy, Kalyanaraman, Balakrishnan, Manikanta Raman, Haseeb Drabu, Shinu Gupta, Sorabji and Jitha, Selva, Geetha and their loving son Sangeeth. I would also like to thank Issa Kipera, for all the trouble he took in looking into the draft copy of my work. His suggestions were highly constructive and this contribution proved to be very crucial at the critical hour. My thanks also goes to Dr. Yarram Subba Reddy, (Lecturer, IFMR, Madras) and Ms. Smitha (Journalist, Business Line, Madras) who provided me with some vital information on this area, when I was in dire need. A special mention has to be made of Mr. Rajat K. Paddi from BITS, Pilani, who helped me in completing my data collection. This work had good wishes from many others whom I may have missed, but I remember one and all, and let me extend my thanks to all of them, through these few words.

I would also like to thank the Wardens and Office staff at Brahmaputra Hostel, which was my home in Delhi for the whole period of my work. My stay in this hostel isolated from the main campus, is one of sweet memories.

I have great regard for this university, which helped me refine my thinking on the dynamics and functioning of society, a role which only JNU could have taken. I would like to express my thanks to one and all of this family for providing an atmosphere conducive for research, thinking and re-thinking. My good wishes to this great campus.

I consider myself blessed to have the constant love and support of Amma and Achan, who have been by my side always. This has been further strengthened by the support and love of Priya, Pradeepetan, Rameshettan, and Anithachechi, who have been with me throughout. A support which I always took for granted as a part of me, has been from my friend and colleague Smitha. She has constantly shared my stress and strain and has been a great boon to me during these difficult times.

Finally, I am grateful to God for providing me all that He has, in the form of good friends and pure thoughts, which have carried me so far.

I have received assistance from several sources in completing this thesis. Yet, it goes without saying, that I am solely responsible for all errors and omissions in this study and for any inaccuracies or gaps in the understanding of the subject.
