ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This work owes its existence, in a large measure, to the valuable guidance, encouragement, support and insights of my teacher, colleagues, and friends without which it might not have been possible for me to venture and do this research work.

I express my sincere gratitude to my guide Dr K. K. Chaudhuri, Professor and Head, MBA programme, Indian Institute of Social Welfare and Business Management, Calcutta, whose invaluable supervision kept me on the right track throughout my research. He has always been a source of inspiration for me. He encouraged me to apply fundamentals, concepts, advancements and current practices in the field of management of change. I consider myself fortunate to get the benefit of his expertise in the field of management and rich experience of guiding research scholars leading to Ph.D. degrees. I am indebted to him for receiving his direction and inputs in refining my work.

I am indebted to all my friends who were a constant source of inspiration throughout the entire duration of my work and for providing all the help whenever required. The study could not have been completed without the help and cooperation of my senior colleagues, peers and other members of my organisation. I am grateful to them for their valuable suggestions, help and cooperation extended to me during the entire course of my work.

Perhaps I will be failing in my duty if I do not acknowledge my sincere gratitude to my wife Shubha and our only beloved son dear Anupam (who is no more), who have always been with me during my research work. They sacrificed my company and my nearness to them for the work that I was doing and encouraged me continuously to go ahead with my work. I express my heart-felt gratefulness to both of them for everything that they have done for me.

(Taposh Ghoshal)