List of Figures

Introduction
Fig 1. Tree of Life: illustrated in (left) an embroidery from North India and (right) a Dhokra sculpture from central India. (reference taken from http://artpropelled.blogspot.com/2006_11_01_archive.html)

Fig 2. A wooden idol is being worshipped beneath a tree, in front of the Gargandhi Temple, Rasipur, PS Amta, Howrah.

Chapter I Woodcarving in Bengal: a brief historical overview
Fig 1. One of the carved pilasters, from a rath of Jagannāṭha, from Mahishadal, East Medinipur, West Bengal. 210cm x 180cm x 30 cm. Early/Mid 19 cent. Victoria and Albert Museum, London. (taken from Wood Carvings of Eastern India – Kalyan Kumar Dasgupta, pl 1-12)

Fig 2. An artist's impression of the Gateway at Harappa: Indus Valley Civilization. (taken from crystalinks.com/induscivilization.html)

Fig 3. Mother and child from Patna, Bihar. (taken from Wood Carvings of Eastern India, pl 20)

Fig 4. Details of the eastern gateway of the Sanchi stupa.

Fig 5. Details of the Bharhut railings, kept in Indian Museum, Kolkata.

Fig 6. The Karli Chaitya: Ground Plan of the cave, engraved by Cooper after a plan by Outhett, published in ‘George Viscount Valencia’s Voyages and Travels’ 1811. (taken from columbia.edu/ltc/mealac/pritchett/00routesdata/0001_0099/karle/caveplan/caveplan.html)

Fig 7. The dolls from Chandraketugarh.

Fig 8. Pillar-capital from Sonarang, PS Tongibari. (taken from WCOEI, pl 22)

Fig 9. Surasundarī from Kaji-kasba.

Fig 10. (a) Details of pillar I from Rampal. (taken from WCOEI, pl 27-28) (b) Details of pillar II from Rampal. (taken from WCOEI, pl 29, 31)

Fig 11. Details of Pillar II from North Kaji-kasba.

Fig 12. Wooden panel from Bengal-Tibet border. (taken from ‘Vṛhat Banga’, pl 436d)

Fig 13. Details of the pillars from Satksira. (taken from ‘Vṛhat Banga’, pl 419a)

Fig 14. Broken remains of the house at Mitra Tentulia. (taken from Vṛhat Banga, pl 419d)

Fig 15. (a) Details of the Candlimandap of Antpur, Hooghly.

Fig 15. (b) Details of one of the pillars of the Candlimandap of Ula-Birnagar (photographed in three parts).

Fig 16. Details of the Rath of Kundu-family. (taken from Vṛhat Banga, pl 419c)

Fig 17. Details of Rath-sculptures from Bawali. (taken from Vṛhat Banga, pl 419c)

Fig 18. Jaina Ascetic from Jessore. (taken from Great Centres of Art: Calcutta – ed Heinze Mode, pl 71a)
Fig 19. The intricately carved door of Radhāvallabhji Temple (1764 AD) of Vallabhpur, PS Srirampur, Hooghly.

Chapter II  Wooden Idols of West Bengal: antiquity of traditional excellence

Fig 1. Buddhist Tārā from Kanheri. (taken from Marg, 36/1, 1982, illustration on p 84)

Fig 2. Viṣṇū from Krishnapur. (taken from pl XXVIII of Iconography of Buddhist and Brahmanical Sculptures in the Dacca Museum)

Fig 3. Details of Viṣṇū-on-Garur from Goda.

Fig 4. Garur from Raghubampur. (taken from pl XLI of Iconography of Buddhist and Brahmanical Sculptures in the Dacca Museum)

Fig 5. The existing 'āṣṭādāṭu' image of Tripurasundar of Boral.

Fig 6. Today's Madanmohan temple of Rudrani.

Fig 7. Mahāprabhu's said footprint at Gauranga Bāṛi, Katwa.

Fig 8. Details of – (a) Śyamsundar of Hilora and (b) Sarveśvar of Bajitpur.

Fig 9. The traveling-cart of Śyamsundar.

Fig 10. Remains of bricks of the old Rādhāvallabhji temple at Khari.

Fig 11. The empty Jagannāth temple of Bahiri.

Fig 12. Details of – (a) Gaúropāl (above), (taken from gaúdiyaphotonews-gaurmandala.blogspot.com); and (b) the Śrīpāṭ of Jagadish Pandit (below), Jashora

Fig 13. The way to Nitai Bāṛi, Ekchakra.

Fig 14. Details of Nitai-Gaur of Simurali.

Fig 15. Details of Nitai-Gaur of Madanpur.

Fig 16. Śrīpāṭ of Mahesh Pandit, as it is today at Pal-pāṛā.

Fig 17. Details of Nitai-Gaur of Krishnapur.

Fig 18. Details of Nitai-Gaur of Jaligram.

Fig 19. Details of the Śrīpāṭ of Gauridas.

Fig 20. Interior of Cīteśvari Temple. (taken from the website of Times of India Publications)

Fig 21. Details of Kālī of Sardar-pāṛā.

Fig 22. Venugopāl from Kansat

Fig 23. The temple complex at Kheturi: as it is today

Chapter III  Wooden Idols: a list of existing specimens in West Bengal (No figure)

Chapter IV  The Technology

Fig 1. Logs of Neem-wood.
Chapter V

The Visual Splendour

Fig 1. Details of the torso of Loknāth from Tongibari (left) and Viṣṇū-on-Garur from Goda (right)

Fig 2. An ideal proportion of Uttama-nava-tāla. (reference taken from ‘Bhāratśipe Mūrti’ – Abanindranath Thakur, p 10)

Fig 3. Detail of the knees: Tārā from Kanheri.

Fig 4. The face of Sthirācakra Marjūrī (left) and the left shoulder of Loknāth (right).

Fig 5. Details of sitting posture: Garur from Raghurampur (left) and Viṣṇū-on-Garur from Goda (right)

Fig 6. Details of the right and left hand of Sthirācakra Marjūrī.

Fig 7. Chronologically from left: Tribhanga, Atibhanga, Samabhanga, Samabhanga and Ābhanga. (reference taken from http://anilmenon.eom/blog/category/culture/page/2)

Fig 8. Details of the faces: Balarām of Boro (left) and Sirhabhīrīnī of Nijabalia (right).

Fig 9. Details of the feet in ‘Tribhanga-murārī’ posture.

Fig 10. Different characters of Vamśī-dhar or Muraśi-dhar mudra.

Fig 11. Sapta-Tāla image of ‘Eklā Nitai’ of Nabadvip.

Fig 12. ‘Ucchṛṭta Bāhu’. (from left): (i) traditional ‘Maṅgāl Cihra’ of Bengal; (ii) terracotta figure of Viṣṇu from Bangladesh, late Gupta period. (taken from Bhāratīya Nṛtyer Trayā – Jaidev, Chattanyadev, Rabindranath by Mahua Mukhopadhyay, pl XII; (iii) wooden idol of Gauranga, c 19 cent; (iv) Dr Mahua Mukhopadhyay performing ‘Gaurīya Nṛtya’. (taken from ‘Gaurīya Nṛtya – Prācin Banglā Ṣāstrīya Nṛtyadhāra’ by Mahua Mukhopadhyay, p 228)

Fig 13. Samapad and Svastik Śthānak.

Fig 14. Ekajānugata and Parābṛttta Śthānak.

Fig 15. Viśṛav and Vaitān Śthānak.

Fig 16. Brahmamayī Kāli of Majilpur, PS Jainagar, South 24 Parganas.

Fig 17. Vara and Abhay mudrā: (from left) Gaṛcandī of Jhikhira, PS Amta, Howrah, and Nitai of Gopalgunj, PS Visnupur, Bankura

Fig 18. Patāk, Padmakoṣ and Tripatāk Hasta.
Fig 19. Mush, Sangandas, Hamsapakṣa and Kṛṣṇāsār Mukh Hasta.

Fig 20. Specimens, depicting the ‘Patañ-c ārā’ eyes and other facial features of the 16-century School of Bengal Sculpture.

Fig 21. Details of Gauranga of Katwa: before (left) and after dressing up (right).

Fig 22. Faces of the wooden idol of Jaycand of Jhikhira-Sarkhelpara, PS Amta, Howrah (c. 17 cent AD) and the clay-image of Goddess Durgā of Sovabazar Rājārī, Kolkata (traditional form since mid-18 cent).

Fig 24. A Jagannāth-triad from Orissa with a pillar-like ‘Sudarśan’ (above) and the specimen from Bahiri, East Medinipur, accompanied by ‘Sudarśan’ in Jagannāth-form (below).

Fig 25. Two unique forms of Jagannāth: one from Rādhā Śyām Temple of Visnupur (left) and the other from Dhaniakhali Bazaar of Hooghly (right).

Fig 26. Two specimens of Kṛṣṇa-Rādhā: One from West Bengal (left) and the other from Orissa (right).

Fig 27. Śarabhuj Gauranga: one from West Bengal (left) and the other from Orissa (right).

Fig 28. Nityananda: One from West Bengal (left) and the other from Orissa (right).

Fig 29. Garuḍ: One from West Bengal (left) and the other from Orissa (right).

Chapter VI Decline of the Past Glory: changing faces of history

Fig. Advertisement by an artist of wooden idols; Ekchakra, PS Mayuresvar/Moudesvar, Birbhum; as on 13.03.2011

Chapter VII Conclusion (No figure)

Annexure I Distribution of Icons in various Districts (No figure)

Annexure II The Viṣṇu-image from Goda

Fig 1. Viṣṇu-on-Garuḍ – (i) in stone; c 11 century AD; from Niamatpur, Naogaon, Rajsahi, now at Varendra Research Museum (ii) in wood; c 10-12 century AD; from Goda, Bardhaman, now at State Archaeological Museum, Kolkata.

Fig 2. Details of Viṣṇu; Pallav School (c 9 century AD); presently at Indian Museum, Kolkata (65/11)

Fig 3. Details of the Viṣṇu from Goda

Annexure III Yearly traveling plan of Rādhāmādhav

Fig Jagannāth-Mādhava-Rādhārāṇī, being worshipped at the residence of Goswami-family, Katwa, Bardhaman