ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The idea for this thesis was sparked in my mind in January 1998, when I was invited to present a paper on Lawrence Durrell’s The Alexandria Quartet, organized by the International Durrell Society at St. Berchmans College. It was my first experience of Lawrence Durrell, a fascination that never waned. My acquaintance with William Faulkner began in my student days. I was fascinated by some of the radical theories of modern science that made me think about the interface between science, philosophy and literature. The theoretical discipline of Narratology provided me with tools to work with. Focusing down was the most difficult part of the job. In the process of writing this thesis a number of people have inspired me and lent me help at various stages.

I would first thank my supervisor Dr M.Y. Abraham, former Principal Mar Thoma College, Thiruvalla for his interest, help and encouragement in the course of my work.

I place on record the support and encouragement given to me by my life partner and alter ego Rekha, but for whose immense patience and perseverance, this would never have seen the light of day. There is much more than words can express.

I am also indebted to my most dear kids Anjana, Ammu and Dhanya who share my love of learning and arts. My special thanks goes to my mother in law Prof. Philomena Mathews (former H. O. D, St Joseph’s College, Alapuzha) who carefully did the final proof reading and technical corrections for me. I am indebted to Ambily and Naveen who bought books for me from Canada and always enquired how far I had progressed. Also Kochu and Siby, Manju and Haimer, Chackochan and Rosu,
Thommachan and Renu and their kids, my brother Aniyan, sister Daisy, their spouses and children who complete the family circle.

I have a special place in my heart for Uncle Joe (Dr Joe Mannath SDB, formerly Reader, Chair of Christianity, Madras University) brilliant scholar and wonderful human being who encouraged me greatly in my endeavours.

I have a special word of thanks for the renowned Durrell Scholar Dr. C. Raveendran Nambiar (Formerly of the Dept of English, Cochin College) who introduced me into the world of Durrell and showed great interest in my work. He provided a lot of materials from his personal library for my use. I am indebted to the members of the International Lawrence Durrell Society and especially Dr James Gifford, Assistant Professor of English and Director of the University Core at Fairleigh Dickinson University, Vancouver, Canada, who supplied materials to the Durrell Centre at S. B. College which I found immensely useful for my work. I also place on record the help and friendship I continue to receive from Dr. Stephen Mathews, Principal and my colleagues in the Department of English, St Berchmans College Changanacherry, especially Josy Joseph Valiaparampil with whom I share many common interests.

I remember with gratitude the staff of the former IACIS (ASRC) for providing help with the research during my two visits there.

The final formatting and printing work were executed by Samuel Abraham M.T. Seminary Kottayam, to whom I express my sincere gratitude. A big thank you to all.
