This thesis is based entirely on original sources which, I believe, have not been consulted so far by anyone. It is also based on my experience and knowledge of the inner working of the Universities in North East India, which I gained first as a Lecturer in Statistics, then as Assistant Registrar, then as Treasurer and as Registrar. I had the privilege of having easy access to official records and also to understand the thought processes of the officers and authorities of the universities and colleges in this region. To some extent this is a micro study of the problem and as a consequence the thesis has become rather voluminous. Each topic can be taken up for further study. Particularly, Grants-in-aid and Examination Reform are fascinating subjects for separate study. However, the author believes that he has dealt with all aspects of the subject.

In the preparation of this thesis a number of obligations have been incurred. First, I must express my gratefulness to Shri P. C. Sarma, the Keeper of Records, Assam Government, for permitting me to consult... the records available in his office at Shillong; to the authorities of the different Universities for supplying the material; to Professor V. Venkata Rao, Emeritus Professor of Political Science, Gauhati University for all the guidance and encouragement he gave me in the preparation of the thesis; and finally to Shri L. Singh and Shri R. Baisya for typing out the thesis within a short time. I have corrected the typescript as carefully as possible. If there are still some more type mistakes, I may be excused.
