ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This study was suggested to me by Dr. Bela Lahiri, now the professor of the History Department, Jadavpur University. But it was executed mainly under the guidance of Dr. Amarendra Nath Lahiri, formerly professor and Head of the Department of Ancient Indian History and Culture, University of Calcutta. It is only due to his guidance and affectionate care that the work is successfully completed. I am sincerely grateful to them.

A valuable service has been rendered to me by the Sanskrit College Library of Calcutta, the Calcutta University Library (Central); the Library of Advanced Studies on Ancient Indian History and Culture, Calcutta; the National Library, Calcutta; and the Asiatic Society of Calcutta; which provides me with necessary books and journals. I owe my indebtedness to office-bearers of these libraries.

Lastly, I am also grateful to the University of Calcutta for the financial assistance through the Premchand and Raychand Scholarship.

TARA PADA MANDAL.
