ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The preparation of this thesis has made me greatly indebted to many individuals and institutions, more than can be acknowledged by name. I am grateful to all of them especially to the University of Mysore.

In particular I owe a great debt of gratitude to my guide, Dr.K.J.Joseph, Chairperson, DOS in Communication and Journalism, University of Mysore for his constant inspiration and scholarly instructions throughout the study. The completion of this study owes very much to his reinforcing stimulation.

My deep sense of gratitude goes to three persons- Dr.C.D.Chakkappan, Head, Dept. of Journalism and Mass Communication, St.Joseph’s College, Irinjalakuda, Kerala, Ms.Premy Sunny, Dept. of Mathematics, St.Joseph’s College, Irinjalakuda, Kerala and Dr.Raju N, Professor in Statistics, Calicut University. Their contributions to this study go much deeper than their role as friends and advisers.

It goes without saying that the study could not have been completed without the co-operation of a number of respondents across Karnataka, Kerala and Tamilnadu who willingly underwent a long ordeal of interviews even during their busy schedule. To them I owe the fruits this work.

Last but not the least I am grateful to my mother, Stella, who helped with the arduous process of tabulating and recording the data, my brother Christo and my wife Teena, who made sacrifices in their own, little way.
