CONTENTS

CHAPTER I  INTRODUCTION

1.1 Context, need and importance of the study
   1.1.1 Concept of self
   2
1.2 Theories underlying the present study
   1.2.1 Research on self concept
   16
1.3 Factors related to self-content
   1.3.1 Self concept and area
   17
   1.3.2 Self concept and sex
   18
   1.3.3 Self concept and academic achievement
   18
   1.3.4 The present study
   20
1.4 Statement of the problem
   21
1.5 Need for the development of present self concept inventory
   21
1.6 Objectives of the study
   22
1.7 Hypotheses of the study
   23
1.8 Design of the study
   28
1.9 Locale of the study
   28
1.10 Sample of the study
   28
1.11 Variables of the study
   29
1.12 Tools for the study
   29
1.13 Administration of the tools
   29
1.14 Variables studied

1.14.1 Sample

1.14.1.1 Stage 1

1.14.1.2 Stage 2

1.14.2 The tools

1.14.3 Administration of tools

1.14.3.1 Stage I

1.14.3.2 Formation of groups on the basis of demographic and personality variables

1.14.3.3 Final sampling for stage II

1.14.4 Analysis of data

1.14.5 Statistical technique used

1.15 Operational definitions of the terms used

1.15.1 Self concept

1.15.2 Academic achievement

1.16 Limitations of the study

1.17 Scheme of chapters

CHAPTER II REVIEW OF RELATED LITERATURE

2.1 Introduction

2.2 Definition of self concept

2.3 Different views on self concept

2.3.1 Phenomenal self

2.3.2 Fully functioning self
2.3.3 Actualising self 42
2.3.4 Congruent self 42
2.4 Self-concept and adolescence 47
2.5 Development of self concept at adolescent level 48
2.6 Development of self concept and family factors 52

CHAPTER III DESCRIPTION OF DIFFERENT DIMENSIONS OF SELF CONCEPT USED IN THIS STUDY
3.1 Introduction 75
3.2 Physical self 75
3.3 Social self 78
3.4 Temperamental self 79
3.5 Educational self 80
3.6 Intellectual self 83
3.7 Moral self 86

CHAPTER IV DESIGN OF THE STUDY
4.1 Introduction 93
4.2 Locale of the study 93
4.3 Variables studied 95
4.4 Basic information related to schools 96
4.5 Clientele group 96
4.6 The tools for the study 100
4.7 Tryout 100
   4.7.1 Procedure 101
4.7.2 Stage I

4.7.3 Stage II

4.8 Sampling for stage I

4.8.1 Scoring

4.9 Mean, standard deviation values

4.9.1 Classification of teachers into high and low classroom performance

4.9.2 Classification of teachers into high and low students achievement levels

4.9.3 Classification of teachers into high and low length of experience groups

4.10 Description of the self concept inventory

4.10.1 Physical

4.10.2 Social

4.10.3 Temperamental

4.10.4 Educational

4.10.5 Intellectual

4.10.6 Moral

4.11 Administration of self concept inventory

4.11.1 Scoring

CHAPTER V CONSTRUCTION OF RESEARCH TOOLS THEIR DESCRIPTION AND ADMINISTRATION

5.1 Introduction

5.2 Development of self concept inventory

5.2.1 Introduction
5.2.2 Review of various techniques developed to measure self concept

5.2.2.1 Techniques to obtain self acceptance score

5.2.2.2 Goughs Adjective Checklist and Bill’s Rating Scales

5.2.2.3 Q-Sorts

5.2.2.4 The Who Am I ? Method

5.2.2.5 Where Are You Game

5.2.3 Need for the development of present self concept inventory

5.3 The procedure followed in the construction of self concept inventory

5.3.1 Introduction

5.3.2 Planning

5.4 Objectives of self concept inventory

5.4.1 Physical

5.4.2 Social

5.4.3 Temperamental

5.4.4 Educational

5.4.5 Intellectual

5.4.6 Moral

5.5 Selection of items

5.6 Preparation and editing of items

5.7 Try-out

5.8 Pilot study
5.9 Item analysis

5.10 Item selection

5.11 Reliability of the self concept inventory

  5.11.1 Split-half reliability (coefficient of internal consistency)

  5.11.2 Kuder - Richardson formula – 20

5.12 Validity of the self concept inventory

  5.12.1 Content validity

  5.12.2 Face validity

5.13 The final version of self concept inventory

  5.13.1 Instructions to teachers

5.14 Scoring method

5.15 Other tools

  5.15.1 Teachers classroom performance schedule

  5.15.2 Academic achievement

5.16 Collection of data

  5.16.1 Teacher classroom performance

5.17 Tabulation of data

CHAPTER VI ANALYSIS OF DATA

6.1 Introduction

6.2 Statistical technique employed

  6.2.1 Introduction

  6.2.2 Analysis of variance
6.2.3 Advantages of the analysis of variance technique 136
6.2.4 Basic assumptions of analysis of variance 138
6.2.5 Interactions 140
6.2.6 Two factor interaction 141
6.2.7 Three factor interaction 142
6.2.8 Four factor interaction 142
6.2.9 Five factor interaction 142

6.3 Analysis of the data 143
6.3.1 Significance of the treatment mean square 143
6.3.2 Partitioning the treatment sum of squares 144
   6.3.2.1 Main effects 144
   6.3.2.2 Two-way interaction effects 146
   6.3.2.3 Three-way interaction effects 149
   6.3.2.4 Four-way interaction effects 151
   6.3.2.5 Five-way interaction effects 153
   6.3.2.6 Summary of the analysis of variance 155

CHAPTER VII INTERPRETATION OF DATA AND DISCUSSION

7.1 Introduction 157
7.2 Self concept and area (urban/rural) 158
   7.2.1 Discussion 159
   7.2.2 Conclusion 160
7.3 Self concept and sex 160
   7.3.1 Discussion 161
   7.3.2 Conclusion 162
7.4 Self concept and teachers classroom performance 162
   7.4.1 Discussion 163
   7.4.2 Conclusion 163

7.5 Self-concept and students achievement level 165
   7.5.1 Discussion 167
   7.5.2 Conclusion 167

7.6 Self concept and length of experience 168

7.7 Two-way interaction effects 169
   7.7.1 Interaction between area and sex 169
   7.7.2 Interaction between area and teachers classroom performance 170
   7.7.3 Interaction between area and students achievement level 171
   7.7.4 Interaction between area and length of experience 172
      7.7.4.1 Discussion 173
      7.7.4.2 Conclusion 173
   7.7.5 Interaction between sex and teachers classroom performance 174
   7.7.6 Interaction between sex and students achievement level 175
   7.7.7 Interaction between sex and length of experience 176
   7.7.8 Interaction between teachers classroom performance and students achievement level 177
   7.7.9 Interaction between teachers classroom performance and length of experience 179
   7.7.10 Interaction between students achievement level and length of experience 181
7.8 Three-way interaction effects

7.8.1 Interaction among area, sex and teachers classroom performance

7.8.2 Interaction among area, sex and students achievement level

7.8.3 Interaction among area, sex and length of experience

7.8.4 Interaction among area, teachers classroom performance and students achievement level

7.8.5 Interaction among area, teachers classroom performance and length of experience

7.8.6 Interaction among area, students achievement level

7.8.7 Interaction among sex, teachers classroom performance and students achievement level on self concept

7.8.8 Interaction among sex, teachers classroom performance and length of experience on self concept

7.8.9 Interaction among sex, students achievement level and length of experience on self concept

7.8.10 Interaction among teachers classroom performance, students achievement level and length of experience on self-concept

7.9 Four-way interaction effects

7.9.1 Interaction among area, sex, teachers classroom performance and students achievement level on self concept

7.9.2 Interaction among area, sex, teachers classroom performance and length of experience on self concept

7.9.3 Interaction among area, sex, students achievement level and length of experience on self concept

7.9.4 Interaction among area, teachers classroom performance, students achievement level and length of experience on self-concept
CHAPTER VIII SUMMARY OF FINDINGS, IMPLICATIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

8.1 Significance of the study 204
8.2 Need for development of present self concept inventory 206
8.3 Correlates of self concept 207
8.4 The present study 207
8.5 Objectives of the study 208
8.6 Hypotheses of the study 209
8.7 Design of the study 214
  8.7.1 Locale of the study 214
  8.7.2 Variables studied 214
  8.7.3 Stage 1 217
  8.7.4 Stage 2 217
  8.7.5 The tools 217
8.8 Scoring of the tools 218
8.9 Analysis of the data 218
8.10 Statistical techniques used 219
8.11 Operational definition of self concept 219
8.12 Limitations of the study 219

8.13 Findings of the study 220

8.13.1 Introduction 220

8.14 Main effects 220

8.14.1 One-way interaction effects 220

8.14.1.1 Self concept and area 220

8.14.1.2 Self concept and sex 221

8.14.1.3 Self concept and teachers classroom performance 221

8.14.1.4 Self concept and students achievement level 222

8.14.1.5 Self concept and length of experience 222

8.14.2 Two-way interaction effects 223

8.14.2.1 Area and sex 223

8.14.2.2 Area and teachers classroom performance 223

8.14.2.3 Area and students achievement level 223

8.14.2.4 Area and length of experience 224

8.14.2.5 Sex and teachers classroom performance 224

8.14.2.6 Sex and students achievement level 224

8.14.2.7 Sex and length of experience 225

8.14.2.8 Teachers classroom performance and students achievement level 225

8.14.2.9 Teachers classroom performance and length of experience 225

8.14.2.10 Students achievement level and length of experience 226
8.14.3 Three-way interaction effects

8.14.3.1 Area, sex and teachers classroom performance

8.14.3.2 Area, sex and students achievement level

8.14.3.3 Area, sex and length of experience

8.14.3.4 Area, teachers classroom performance and students achievement level

8.14.3.5 Area, teachers classroom performance and length of experience

8.14.3.6 Area, students achievement level and length of experience

8.14.3.7 Sex, teachers classroom performance and students achievement level

8.14.3.8 Sex, teachers classroom performance and length of experience

8.14.3.9 Sex, students achievement level and length of experience

8.14.3.10 Teachers classroom performance, students achievement level and length of experience

8.14.4 Four-way interaction effects

8.14.4.1 Area, sex, teachers classroom performance and students achievement level

8.14.4.2 Area, sex, teachers classroom performance and length of experience

8.14.4.3 Area, sex, students achievement level and length of experience

8.14.4.4 Area, teachers classroom performance, students achievement level and length of experience
