ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Any doctoral research is arduous, time consuming and a challenging task that requires guidance, patience and support from many individuals. It would not have been possible to undertake this research work without the invaluable support of many individuals. First and foremost I am grateful to my supervisor Dr Paramjit Singh, Professor in the Department of Sociology, Guru Nanak Dev University, Amritsar, for guiding me in this research journey. He not only shared his wisdom, corrected my flaws but he also encouraged me to grow in this long academic journey. I am deeply grateful to him and inspired by him too, for he demonstrated to me that life’s valuable rewards come through hard work and dedication.

I will also give a special thanks to Dr. Gurpreet Bal, Professor and Head, Department of Sociology, Guru Nanak Dev University, Amritsar for her encouragement and interest in my work. She always provided fruitful suggestions during the course of this work which motivated me to improve.

I also express my gratitude and thankfulness to all the faculty members of the Department of Sociology for their sustained encouragement from post graduation to research, and my special thanks to Dr Jesna Jayachandaran for her contribution in completion of my research work. I deeply acknowledge that I have reached this position only with the help of all my teachers who inspired my interest in research.

I am also indebted to all the research scholars in the department of sociology for their encouragement and helpfulness. I am thankful to the library staff of the department of sociology, Mrs. Amarjit Kaur and Mr. Jatinder for their cooperation during my work.

I am also grateful to all the respondents, who spent their valuable time in sharing their views and providing me with the excellent information that allowed me to see life in the border areas through a new light. Without their time and cooperation there would have been no research of such kind. My deep thanks to my friends too for their warm support.
I am profoundly grateful from the bottom of heart to my respected parents, who by selflessly sacrificing their wants and interests, instilled in me the fire to study and excel in life. For this I will remain indebted to them for my whole life. During the worst times, it is my mother who made me realise that there is nobody above motherly affection and no one else who can make you think positively.

Finally, I gratefully acknowledge the inspiration, encouragement, guidance and valuable suggestions of all those who helped me in bringing out this research work from its conception to completion.
