Acknowledgement

I am highly grateful to DHS international who permitted and provided me the data of Third National Family Health Survey, 2005-06. Without this data support, present study cannot be formulated and the assumed hypothesis would have not been tested.

This work would have not been possible without the inspiration, guidance, and unlimited cooperation of Prof. Ishita Mukhopadhyay and Prof. Snigdha Chakravarti. I express my heartiest gratitude to both of my guides for their warm inspiration and help. I am extremely grateful for their timely suggestions and valuable teachings which direct my ideas to a new horizon.

I am extremely thankful to my teachers of the course work who taught me about feminism. These lessons create an insight to analyze the work through feminist lens.

I am thankful to Prof. Amita Majumdar of Economic Research Unit, Indian Statistical Institute for her valuable suggestions and advices regarding the statistical analysis of the work.

I extend my gratitude to Prof. Satya Chakraborty, the then Head of Economic Research Unit for his strong recommendation in favour of me for doing this study. Also I am grateful to Prof. Shankar Paul, former Director, Indian Statistical Institute for permitting me to do this study. I am grateful to Prof. Bimal Roy, Director, Indian Statistical Institute for permitting me to attend the course work programme for six months.
I am also grateful to all of the office and library staff of ‘Women’s Studies Research Centre’ of Calcutta University for extending their cordial help whenever it is needed.

I extend my deep gratitude to my parents who help me in all possible ways to complete my work. Also I am thankful to my daughter and husband for their moral support.
