ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

At the onset I would take the opportunity to express my thoughts and feel that became instrumental for me to select the subject and complete the works and study of my thesis. My Ph.D dissertation was never confined within the limits of academic interest only. My identity crisis was running in and through all along my life, ever since I began the journey of my life all by myself and at that time I had only a handful of minds to provide me a mental support from the nook and corners. In this persuasion, my conscious compelled me select this particular subject for the study of my research work.

I wish to express my sincere gratitude to both of my guides for their supervision and support that they had always extended and which truly helped the progress and smooth completion of the entire research activity.

Dr. Madhabendra Nath Mitra, with his fatherly care and nourishment had shown me the path and guided me to the horizon of completion. I express my deep respect to him for his contribution. I felt immersed into the deep sea of soundness and tranquillity whenever I got opportunities to interact with him for the purpose of the research works.

Dr. Soumitra Basu, stands in front of myself as my idol. I wish to carry on in the future span of my life in his footsteps and with his ideology. I express my whole hearted respect to him. I have no hesitation to declare that I have learnt from him all the ingredients of “Ethical issues of Psychotherapy” starting from the very basics to the end. I admire his persistent and meticulous attitude. Despite his hectic schedule as a professor he was always available to provide me the guidance and showered his encouragements. His insights to design the thesis are second to none. Besides, he sets an example with his rigor and passion on research. Apparently, he is the light of knowledge, shading light on my research issues from a spiritual angle.

My deepest gratitude goes to my family for their unflagging love and support throughout my life; this dissertation was simply impossible without them. I am indebted to my father, for his care and best wishes. He wanted to see his daughter complete her Ph.D but most unfortunately he departed me much ahead of the completion. As a genuine mother in an Indian family, my mother worked industriously to support me and the family and spare no effort to provide the best possible environment for me to grow up and attend this level. Although she is also no longer with me, I shall remember her forever as my inspiration of my life. I am sure they will share a very happy moment now in the heaven.

I cannot ask for more from my elder brother, as he is simply a perfect professional. I have no suitable word that can fully describe his efforts and supports to complete my works. I remember many sleepless nights and thereafter talking to him the very next day amongst my sufferings.

My son stands amidst all this as a huge pillar of motivation for me and with his senses and practical aspects of his outlook have always encouraged me. At times, he has conceived many a pains to overcome unstable conditions without uttering a single word.

I have to acknowledge Jadavpur University for approving the research fellowship in my favour, at the early days of my works. This was of stupendous help at the extreme need of the time.

The generous support from the librarians of our University is greatly appreciated. In retrospect, it became that much easier for me to continue with confidence.
Last but not least, let me express my whole hearted thanks to The Principal of P.D. Woman’s College, Jalpaiguri, West Bengal to be so much supportive in many ways throughout the last few years. I am grateful to The Principal and The Governing Body Members for sanctioning a study leave for a month and a half to complete my works in all respect.

My salute to all those who have made my life more bountiful. May your names be exalted, honoured, and glorified.
