ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

My interest in the field of social stratification goes back to 1974 when I started working for M.Phil dissertation. Since then I have been associated with Dr K.L. Sharma first as a student of M.Phil and later on as a doctoral fellow. I am, indeed, grateful to him for supervising my work during these years, and in particular, for supervising the present study with utmost patience and ability. It would not have been possible for me to complete this study without his constant guidance and encouragement.

I am thankful to Professor Yogendra Singh for his valuable suggestions at the initial stage of this study. My thanks are also due to other faculty members of the Centre for the Study of Social Systems from whom I learned a great deal of sociological stratagems. My thanks are due to Mr H.N. Singh for going through some of the chapters of the thesis. I am thankful to Professor S.M. Dubey for his valuable discussions during the field-work for the present study.

Jawaharlal Nehru University provided me doctoral fellowship, and I am thankful to its authorities for the award.

Finally, I am grateful to the people of Hatkhola, Chakaliberia and Kapahua villages who have helped and provided hospitality during the period of fieldwork.

However, I alone remain responsible for all the expressions of omissions and commissions in the present study.
