ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I would like to express my deep felt gratitude for all those who were instrumental in the conception and development of this Ph.D. thesis. During the course of preparation, I have received a lot of support, advice, and suggestions from many sources. This thesis is the result of God’s abundant blessings on me through various persons and resources. I am ever grateful to the Almighty for His untold providential care.

Let me express my sincere gratitude to my guide Dr. C A Antony, Department of Economics, Union Christian College, Aluva for guiding me in my research work and for being a tremendous mentor. His encouragements, expert guidance and supervision at each and every stage helped me to complete the research successfully.

My sincere thanks to Dr. E S Jeevanand, Associate Professor in Statistics, Union Christian College, Aluva, for his valuable help in the processing of the primary and secondary data and in the application of mathematical and statistical tools.

I am extremely thankful to Prof Kalyanaraman and Dr. Harikumar for giving an opportunity to learn mathematical and statistical methods which gave me confidence to complete my work.

Let me take this opportunity to express the profound gratitude to Dr. A Benny Cherian, Principal, Union Christian College, Aluva, for providing all facilities and encouragement.

It is my privilege to thank Dr. Rajan Varughese, Head of the Department of Economics, Union Christian College, Aluva, for his valuable support and motivation. I also thank the present and retired teachers of Economics Department and teaching and non-teaching staff of other departments of Union Christian College, Aluva, for their suggestions and help.

My thanks goes to the staff and office bearers of IT @ School project, Government of Kerala, and the teachers in charge of the project, in different schools for their kind cooperation. I also remember the teachers and students who cooperated with me during the field survey.

My sincere gratitude to Dr. Jisha John, Associate Professor, Department of Economics, Christian College, Chenganore, for being a constant source of encouragement and support.

I appreciate the support of the staff of the various libraries, especially Mahatma Gandhi University Kottayam, Union Christian College, Aluva, Centre for Development Studies, Thiruvananthapuram, and various Departments of Mahatma Gandhi University.

Sincere efforts taken by Mr.K.V. Sugunan, Lars Computers, Athirampuzha for setting, printing and binding the thesis is commendable.

A special thanks to all my family members for their sacrifices and sincere efforts. Their prayers and love sustain me throughout my life.

Let me thank all my friends who supported me during the research period and incentivized me to strive towards my goal.

Sunil Abraham Thomas