Contents

Acknowledgements i

Abbreviations iii

CHAPTER ONE................................................................. 1

INTRODUCTION: 'THE RICHNESS OF CHILDHOOD'

The Child in English Literature Prior to the Postcolonial 5
The Child in the Postcolonial Novel Today 17
The Child and Postcolonialism 22
Nationalism, Decolonisation and National Identity 25
'School, a precious world': Education 28
'The Unswerving Wisdom of the Child': Why the Child? 30
'Ever-Shifting Kaleidoscope of the Imagination': The Element of Fantasy 35
History and Territory in Postcolonial Literature 38
The Child and Postmodernism 40

CHAPTER TWO................................................................ 45

'A SPIRIT-CHILD NATION': THE CHILD IN THE ENGLISH NOVEL IN AFRICA 45

'A Curse not to have Children': Sociological background 47
'The vision of childhood': Education 57
'Abiku-child': Trope for Africa 65
'Old Palm Trees': The Importance of the Mother 75
Critiquing Strategy: Change and Formulation of Identity 82
'Listening in the Childhood Hour': The Use of Autobiography 93
'Is there anything wrong in being a girl?' 97

CHAPTER THREE................................................................ 109

'POWDER FOR WAR': THE CHILD IN THE CARIBBEAN NOVEL 109

'Almost another world': Historical Background 110
'The Vagaries of Childhood': The Use of Autobiography 114
'Outside Children': Fatherlessness and Bastardisation 119
'Readers and Learners': Education 129
'Just as I was goin' born the light went out': Race and Colour 152
'Daughters of the Empire': Being a girl in the Caribbean 154
The Winds of Change 161
CHAPTER FOUR

`A PLACE TO WRITE FROM': THE CHILD IN THE ENGLISH NOVEL OF THE INDIAN SUBCONTINENT

- "Half-devil, half child": The Colonial Precursor to the Postcolonial Use of the Child
- ‘Widening World of Childhood’: The Child in the Indian Subcontinent
- ‘Children know many things without being told’: The Perspective of the Child
- The Child as Historical Witness: The Partition of the Indian Subcontinent
- Territory, History and National Identity
- Daughters’ Daughters: The Gender Question
- Writing in the Nineties

CHAPTER FIVE

TOWARDS INTEGRATION

Bibliography