Acknowledgements

I wish to express my genuine and deep sense of gratitude to my supervisor, Professor Zoya Hasan, who is one of the leading political scientists working on the politics of identity. Despite her total involvement in purely, academic activities, she has offered valuable suggestions which have contributed a great deal to my study of Dalit politics. Perhaps she is the only professor who has guided such a large number of Dalit scholars in the CPS, on various themes of the Dalit consciousness and identity. I am indeed highly indebted to her profound interest in Dalits, the wretched of the India.

I also express my gratitude to Professor Balveer Arora, the Centre’s chair person, for his finer humanitarian gestures. He helped me in abundant ways.

I am very grateful to Professor I.N. Mukherji, who supervised my M.Phil dissertation, and was greatly kind to transfer me from the South Asian Division to Political Studies. I am equally grateful to Professor A.K. Ray and Professor Kalim Bahadur, then the Chair Persons of CPS, and South Asian Division. With their effectionate help I could easily transfer without difficulty.

I am also thankful to Professor S.D. Muni and Professor Dawa Norbu, who have given me much encouragement at the South Asian Division.

I express my gratitude to Professor Kancha Ilaiyah, Osmania University, a constant source of my Ph.D. thesis. He has given me wider contacts. With his words of introduction, I met Mr. A.K. Das Gupta and HRK of the Enadh/News Times Research Division library.

I express my gratitude to Professor G. Haragopal, University of Hyderabad. In an interview for my thesis work, he gave me an excellent account of Dalit consciousness in Andhra Pradesh. I am also equally greatful to Professor Nancharaiah, University of Hyderabad, who provided me important economic data and other materials.

I express my gratitude to K.G. Satyamurthy, Bojja Tarakam, Katti Padma Rao, Ganumala Gnaneswar, U.Sambasiva Rao, Dr. S.V. Satyanarayana, P.V. Rao, Dr. D.Adams, Satish Chandra, Kalekuri
Prasad from all these serious Dalit politicians, intellectuals and hardcore activists, I have benefited immensely. They have given me great account of valuable hidden, so far not documented, information on Dalit consciousness in Andhra Pradesh. Without their co-operation and kind help I could not have completed this thesis.

I am grateful to Mr. Thomas Mathew, economic and Weekly, with whom I had lot many lengthy discussions on the emergence of Dalit democratic revolution in India.

I express my gratitude to Gaddar, the revolutionary, ballad singer and the new democratic cultural revolutionary icon. I am equally thankful to Masterji, singer, song composer. He is also the most powerful Dalit cultural disseminator.

I am thankful to the Library staff of JNU, the P.C. Joshi Memorial Contemporary Library, JNU, the Nehru Memorial Library, the Indian Social Institute Library, the Andhra Pradesh State Assembly Library, Hyderabad and the Osmania University Library (Hyderabad).

I am extremely thankful to all the members of my family, and friends, particularly Koi Kokswarlu K. Venkateswarlu (Ekalavya), I have special thanks to Malli Peddi Ramesh Kumar who helped me Telugu translation.

Lastly, I am thankful to Anil Pawar, Shibu Pulikkottil and Jasbir Singh of M/s. A.P. Computers, who typed this thesis with extensive care.
