1. Gandhi was not only a freedom fighter or a mass leader but he was a journalist too. He realised that "Pen is mighter than Sword" and so he took up the cause of the people and started publishing the newspapers with his whole hearted dedication. It is unwise to compare Gandhi as the editor of the modern days because he had the noble objective of fighting against apartheid oppression and imperialism. Starting in South Africa and then coming to India Gandhi understood that it is through the newspapers a steady public opinion could be formed and he gave his effort to bring out four journals consecutively. The analysis of Gandhi's newspapers show that his journals were more of the views papers and with his genius touch he had shown an excellence in the field of journalism too.

2. This thesis deals in the subject Gandhi as a journalist tries to explain and analyse with examples what achievements Gandhi had in bringing out the newspaper.

In this thesis:

Chapter-I:
The area of thesis research; its objectives and methodology.
Chapter-II :

Life and Work of Gandhi.

Chapter-III :

Indian Opinion.

Chapter-IV :

Young India.

Chapter-V :

Navajivan

Chapter-VI :

Harijan.

Chapter-VII :

Conclusion.

30th August, 1999 Sakti Kumar Misra
104, Dawnagazi Road
P.O. Bally, Howrah