Acknowledgement

I wish to express my sincere appreciation to those who have contributed to this thesis and supported me during this amazing journey. First of all, I am extremely grateful to my supervisor, Professor Md. Kutubuddin Halder, for his guidance and all the useful discussions and brainstorming sessions, especially during the difficult conceptual development stage. His deep insights helped me at various stages of my research.

My sincere gratitude is reserved for Joint-supervisor Professor Nimai Chand Maiti for his invaluable insights and suggestions. I remain amazed that despite his busy schedule, he was able to go through the work and give his valuable comments and suggestions on.

Very special thanks to the Department of Education of University of Calcutta for giving me the opportunity to carry out my doctoral research and for their support. I would also like to take this opportunity to thank other Professors for their very helpful comments and suggestions.

PhD students of other University often talk about loneliness during the course of their study but this is something which I never experienced at University of Calcutta. A heartfelt thanks to the really supportive and active research scholars here in Calcutta University who made the experience something special. I am also indebted to my friend Dr. Sandip Chakraborty of Dept. of Statistics of Iswar Chandra Vidyasagar College, Belonia for all his useful suggestions in statistical analysis of my data but also for being there to listen when I needed an ear. A big “Thank you!” also goes out to everybody who participated in this study including all the teachers, cook, community members, Headmasters / Headmistress and students of different schools. Finally, words cannot express the feelings I have for my parents, my wife and son for their constant unconditional support - both emotionally and financially. I would not be here if it not for you. It is amazing to have family close by so far away from home.
