ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I am deeply indebted to Dr. K. Omanakutty, formerly Head of the Department of Music, University of Kerala and my supervising teacher who has been my leading light all along. She was responsible for the selection of the topic and has been nurturing my research works ever since till the last word of the thesis was written. Her long experience as a music teacher and a reputed musician has been of immense help to me. My gratitude to her knows no bounds.

I am extremely grateful to Dr. B. Pushpa Krishnan, Head of the Department of Music, University of Kerala and the staff of the Music Department for their help and co-operation. Thanks are also due to the staff of the University Library, Thiruvananthapuram.

Smt M. Prameela, Professor, and Shri B. Balasubramaniam, Technical Officer of the University of Madras were kind enough to render whatever help I requested from them. I feel indebted to them.

I express my heartfelt gratitude to Sri Perumbavoor G. Ravindranath, renowned music director, Sri Kudamaloor Janardanan, famous flutist and Master Arjun B. Krishna for their help in notating certain tillanas. Meanings of some tillanas which I could not make out were given to me by Dr. P. Janardanan (Telugu tillanas) Sri K. Sreedharan Nair and Sri. Palavesam (Kamba Ramayana tillana) and Prof. Visvanathan (Sanskrit tillanas). I thank all of them.
Natanabhooshanam Vinayachandran, lecturer, Swati Tirunal College of Music, Thiruvananthapuram, choreographed certain tillanas at my request and supervised my dance performance in the studio. I am deeply indebted to him as well as to the orchestra team consisting of Vilappil Rajan (vocal), Kottakkakam Ayyappan (mridangam) and Cheravalli Sasi (violin). I am also thankful to Sri Aleppey Srikumar, lecturer, Swati Tirunal College of Music, Thiruvananthapuram and his team for providing recording facilities in his studio.

My father edited the draft of the thesis commendably. He was at my beck and call to solve my language problems. Whenever I found it difficult to put my ideas in black and white, he came up with the aptest way of expression. My brother Sri Vinod Kumar, who himself has won a doctoral degree in Geology from the University of Kerala has been my source of inspiration. His help and guidance in registration, conversion of registration, preparation and finalization of the thesis and other procedural matters have been invaluable. I bow my head before my father and brother. My beloved husband, my mother-in-law, my mother and my sister-in-law have pricked me up and encouraged me throughout especially at times when I felt like losing my way. I place on record their words of encouragement, with love and affection. I also recall the humorous interludes of my baby Geethanjali which provided moments of relief amidst continuous work.

I am thankful to Sri Pradeep Chandrakumar, Camera man and Sri Suresh Mylakad of Bon-U-tech studio, Thiruvananthapuram for videography and editing works and Sri. Saravanan A, Friends Info, Vazhutacaud for transforming my thesis into a beautifully bound volume.
