GRATITUDE

This thesis is the product of scholarly guidance of my respected teacher, Dr. K. Ramamurthi. It would have been practically impossible to complete the work without his constant encouragement and critical assessment. I have inherited from him an impartial outlook, which, I hope, is reflected in the thesis.

I am indebted to Prof. K. R. Dikshit, the Head of the Department of Geography, University of Poona, for always wishing success and for helping me in every possible way, especially during the last period of completion of the work.

I would also like to express gratitude towards all my teachers, who have shaped and sharpen my mind so as to create liking for every branch of Geography. A special mention should be made of Prof. Ukidwe, Head of the Geography Department, H. P. T. College, Nasik; Dr. P. T. Malshe and Dr. S. B. Sawant, Lecturers in the University Department of Geography.

Thanks are also due to my friends and colleagues for their well-wishing and help.
