ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is with a highly indebted heart that I am putting finishing touches to this research work. Many people have played an important role in this, some of them direct, some of them indirect. Hence, this is an appropriate time as well as a place to express my gratitude to these people, although they may not like this formality. My esteemed supervisor, Prof. Anand Kumar provided an unflinching support to me. With his theoretical insights and unique analytical abilities, Prof. Anand Kumar has brought a much-needed sense and logic to this work. Always exhorting me to do the best, Prof. Anand Kumar has played the perfect role of a supervisor who knows how to teach swimming in a deep ocean of knowledge and provide feedback to develop leadership quality and ability to adapt the pace of changes and overcome the challenges ahead.

I was introduced to sociological theory and methodology by Prof. Avijit Pathak who has did a brain-storming work in suggesting the title of my thesis and with his succinct theoretical expositions harped upon me the basics of the subject values. Hence, this is an appropriate place to acknowledge him. Thanks are also due to the CSSS faculty, especially Prof. Yogendra Singh, Prof. C.N. Venugopal, Prof. R.K. Jain, Prof. J.S. Gandhi, Prof. Imtiaz Ahmad, Prof. K.L. Sharma, Prof. T.K. Oommen, Prof. Nanduram, Prof. Dipankar Gupta, Prof. Ehasunul Haq, Prof. Maitrayee Choudhary, Prof. Tiplut Nongbri, Prof. Susan Viswanathan, Dr. S.M. Jodhka, Dr. Amit Kumar Sharma, Dr. Vivek Kumar, and Dr. Nilika Mehrotra whose teachings shaped and sharpened my ideas on sociology and helped to express them in the most refined manner.

My parents' encouragement has been an essential element in my research career, though it is not possible to express it in words. Their love, warmth and care have made me what I am today. Had it not been for them, I would not have been in JNU. My elder brother, Rajendra and sister-in-law, Renu, younger brother, Gopal and his wife Rita, sister Dhani and Lata through their timely interventions in my life have ensured that I do not stray from my path. Their criticisms have strengthened me as an individual. My parents and brother made sure that I did not lack anything both in terms of material as well as emotional needs. Support of my extended family has also been an important factor which has helped me to sustain myself in JNU. My old parents wanted me to pursue higher education. That was their dream. With the help of my elder brother Surendra Khemundu, who gifted me a computer for my research work and sister-in-law, Pramila I made this higher study possible.

My interest in study of values was stimulated by two people in sociology—first and foremost by Prof. Anand Kumar who had been always a source of inspiration during the M.A. days. His mastery of the subject and a distinctive mode of analysis on the globalization with reference to nation building fascinated and provoked me to look at Indian society in a value frame. Prof. Avijit Pathak is the other person who appreciated my curiosity on the study of values. I also thank Shri Tila Kumar, Department of Sociology, Delhi School of Economics who extended his friendly cooperation to me while pursuing this research. Above everything else, all of these people are wonderful human beings who were always ready to lend a hand of support in whichever manner they were able to.

Talking of my seniors and friends Dr. Ramanath Nayak, Dr. Bhimaşen Hantal, Dr. Sartik Bagh, Ramachandra Parichha, Gobind Pursethy, Dr. Nalini Mohapatra, Dr.
C. Senapati, Mahesh Naik, Shri Ashok Sahay, Shri Birendra Korkora, Rabindra Garada, William, Dr. Niranjan Chichuan, Shri Nrupendra Nath Khosla, Akshaya, Kishore, Xeeloo, Banamali, Provakar, Maheswar Duria, and Ram Bakhya who are the former students of JNU and though being away from JNU, ensured that I contribute my best to the research work.

My native place Koraput, Orissa holds a special place in my life as my college days were spent there in a newly opened private college, Semiliguda where accidentally I got admission into degree course without Hons. Subject. The circle of friends that I gathered there continues to be a matrix of support, especially Susant Das Kuldeep, Prabhat Samal, Bipin Khemundu, Murali, Tanka, Tunu and Surendra Pangi.
Their role, though an indirect one, has to be acknowledged for they were the unbiased critics of my traits. If Koraput is the place where I grew up, JNU can very well be called as a perfect place where I shaped up my academic career and refined my ideas.
It is here that I learnt new lessons of life and also enjoyed the company of some of the most gifted people I have ever come across in my life. The constant fraternal backing of Pranab, Mamta and Manas ensured that I did my best. The words of wisdom coming from long lasting friend Dr. Rajkumar Khosla were the eternal source of inspiration. Dhiraj, Mrugasen, and Sriprasad, as a good friend always offered their opinion and help whenever sought. Positive reinforcements of my cousin Eswar and Chandra who stays with me ensured that I was always on my toes in terms of my academic performance. Sadanand Bag and Hemanta Pande made their best effort to read the drafts of the thesis and made some necessary suggestions for corrections. Help was sought from Sankar to take note of my mistakes and he did it as per his ability. Surviving without sleep for three nights, Tushar and Hemanta ensured that the much required enthusiasm was always there and helped me towards the end of submission. A junior friend and a positive critic of mine Jagannath Ambagudia, due to lack of time could not go through the draft but his support was always there. Sushree and Andrews appreciated my work and always showed the path ahead. Thanks are also due to my M. Phil classmates - Dr. A. Rambabu, Imokant, Pradyumna, Jayprakash, Valentina, Rajsree, Jehi, Ekta, Bharti, Jayshree and Grace. Being comrades in arms, we went through a lot of good and bad times together.

The friendship that I developed with Lokesh, Rakesh, Sameer, Bharat, Kamala, Ashutosh, Naresh, Munna, Dhruba, Gufran has been an enriching experience in many ways. As friends and some as juniors- Birendra Suna, James, Iswar Naik, Bansidhar Khosla, Sarada Das, Shiv Prasad Panda, Sunil Khora, Amesh, Natobar, Madhu, Sarveswar, Manoranjan, Krushna and Debendra helped me throughout the Thesis work. Nandini, who doesn't even know typing, took a lot of pain in providing moral support at the last minute to prevent the technical snags from affecting the work. Special thanks to Sameer for going through the manuscript. With his fascinating insights on research work, he helped me to edit and correct the language used in this thesis. Going beyond their academic significance, in a wider perspective, it has to be said that I have been truly privileged to meet and know all these people.

Thanks are also due to the library staff at JNU Central Library, Mr. Gupta (in charge DSA Library, CSSS), NCERT, for their help in the collection of the required research material. I also appreciate the support of CSSS office staff- Bharat sir, and Negi sir, Shri Tiwari and SSS office staff Satish sir who made sure that procedure wise I did not leave out anything. The people at Sanjay Photostat also need to be mentioned for quickly providing their services whenever required.

Needless to say, I owe responsibility for all that is said in the following pages.
