ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It has been a long, difficult and doubtful journey from SC social welfare hostel to Arts College, Osmania University and to submit a PhD thesis is a dream come true. I had to try hard to make myself believe that I have done it! If I look back in time through hardships, I see many faces that have helped me to overcome difficult times. Unfortunately, due to constraints of time and space, I could not name them all here, but I can sincerely say “I shall be extremely grateful to all of YOU always.”

When it comes to achieving difficult tasks, very few people believe in us. Prof. G. Krishna Reddy happens to be one of those very few people who believed in me, not only that he also made me believe that I could write. He has planted the idea of Ph.D. and took all the care to see it flower and bear fruit. It is his continued encouragement from PG to PHD, invaluable suggestions and able guidance which made this work possible. No amounts of thanks would suffice when it comes to acknowledge his help and guidance. I am deeply indebted to him. In my pursuit of knowledge he continues to be my source of inspiration.

After going through the harsh conditions of my school and college days, the place where I experienced the care and affection of teachers for the first time in my life as a student is in my PG. They introduced me to the new definition of student-teacher relations--cordial relations have created a congenial atmosphere for learning. So, here I proudly take the pleasure of mentioning my PG teachers’ names to whom I remain indebted and whom I remember forever. They are: Prof. V. Yoga Jyostna, Prof. G. Gopal Reddy, Prof. K. Laxmi, Prof. G. Ram Reddy and Asst. Prof. Chandru.

Department of Political Science, Osmania University has given me an opportunity to reinvent myself. I owe much to the Department for what I am now. It consists of not only intellectual stalwarts but also social activists of different fields. It is this unique nature of the department which helped me to understand and analyse both theory and practice with equal academic rigour, which I don’t think would have been possible elsewhere. The affection they shower on the students is equally noteworthy.
As everybody knows OU is always academically active and politically charged. The political circumstances prevalent on campus have prompted me to zero in on my topic of research. When I entered the campus a new political phase was under progress. This is when many of the Dalit students disassociated themselves from the then predominant Left students’ organizations and organized themselves. Caste based organizations were formed for the first time on campus. And this research started with zeal to understand and address this ideological conflict that the students’ organizations were facing then. So, I feel, I also owe much to OU campus for the space it has given to explore myself and the society.

I owe a debt of gratitude to my faculty members, Prof. D Ravinder, Prof. M. Channa Basavaiah, and Prof. Jadi Musalaiah for their concern, care and timely suggestions. And also I express my gratitude to other faculty members, Prof. P. Muthaiah, Prof. A. V. Satish Chandra, Prof. J. L. N Rao, Prof. M. Brahmanandam, Assistant Professors G. Ajay Kumar, Dr. Chalamalla Venkateshwaru and Dr. M. Ramana.

I am extremely grateful to Prof. Ashok Naidu, Principal, University College of Arts and Social Sciences; Prof. K Srinivasulu, Dean, Faculty of Social Sciences, Prof. Yoga Jyostna, Head, Dept. of Political Science; and Prof. K. Benjamin, Chairman, Board of Studies for their enormous support during the period of my research. Without their co-operation this work would not have been possible.

This study has given me a rare opportunity of meeting many great people. I express my heartfelt thanks and gratitude to Balladeer Gaddar, Manda Krishna Madiga, Varavara Rao, Bojja Tharakam, Kura Rajanna, Amar, Chalapathi Rao, Duddu Prabhakar, U. Sambashiva Rao, Mallepalli Laxmaiah, Ganta Chakrapani. These interactions have helped me to understand the limitations of ideology when it is put to practice. These intellectually inspiring interactions have enriched my study.

My special thanks to Prof. K. Srinivasulu, Prof. Kancha Ilaiah, Prof. M. Kodanda Ram, Prof. K. Y. Rathnam, Prof. Arun Kumar Patnaik, Prof. Ajay Gudavarthy, Prof. K. Balagopal, Prof. K. Satyanarayana, Prof. Adapa Satyanarayana, and Comrade Maroju Veeranna for their writings on Dalit, Left and Social Movements in Telangana and Andhra Pradesh, which have helped me immensely in carrying forward my research.

I thank Centre for Advanced Studies (CAS), Dept. of Political Science, OU for selecting me as a project fellow. This has helped me to carry out my research without any financial difficulties. This has also helped to meet and interact with academic intellectuals from all over the country and abroad.

I remember with deep feeling of gratitude my school teacher Koppula Venkateswarlu, who has taught me my first letters of alphabet without knowing he was making a Ph.D. scholar, and my lecturers Achyut and Venkanna who inspired me to do Post Graduation in Political Science.

I am grateful to my uncles (my father’s younger brothers) Mr. David and Mr. Francis for their love and affection and wholehearted support towards my academic career from the beginning to this date. I also must thank my close friends Mr. M. Bhaskar and E.Upender.

My special thanks to PDSU, one of the leading Left student organisation, for helping me to evolve as a human being. My close association with PDSU has helped me to understand society and politics in a better way. It has also given an opportunity to work with different students organizations which in turn helped me to understand ideological differences and conflicts. This organization has also given some great friends whom I value a lot. They are: M. Srinivas, A. Narender, Lalgenda Ravi, Sandyakka, Goverdhan, Pradeep, Satya, Ranjit, Kavitha, Shankar, Gopi and Ramana.

I sincerely thank my seniors on Campus especially Kondru Mallanna, Madhanna, Damodaranna, Lakshmanan and Thirupathanna, Damoderanna for the support they extended when I joined this university, for the books they made me to read which I still remember, and the courage they instilled in me.

I also thank my senior Ph.D. scholar and friend Dr. Nagam Kumaraswamy for his wholehearted support, sincere advice, and flawless friendship. With him I enjoy the unlimited space and freedom to discuss almost anything and almost all the time his advice turns to be extremely useful. Whenever I am in dilemma this is the person I turn to.
I must also thank my fellow research scholars and friends Sudershan Balaboina, Bandi Raju and Thirupathi for their continuous encouragement and support towards my academic career.

I am very much grateful to Dr. Samunnatha, Dr. Konda Nageswar Rao Nalamasa Krishna and G. Chandraiah for their wholehearted support and for guiding me in right direction. My special thanks to EFLU friends: Shankar Sampangi, Mohan Dharavat, Sathish, and HCU friends: Temaji, Surya Prakash, Dr. Sadhu Rajesh from KU, and Gourav from JNU for their continuous support.

I owe a lot to my OU friends for the love and affection they showered on me. They have made my OU days memorable and these people constitute my emotional support system. They are: Aswat, Mani, Dr. G. Srinivasrao, Dr. Madhu, Stalin, David, Dr. Jagan, Mandala Bhaskar, Durgam Bhaskar, Azad, Rudravaram, Aruri Mahender, Vangapalli, Pidamarthi, Balka Suman, Gadera Kishore, Shilpa, Swetha, Sandy, Srilaxmi, Sushma and Mahesh Kongara.

I am fortunate to meet and interact with many great people on various occasions like seminars and workshops. I have really benefited a lot from those interactions. Their observations and suggestions helped a lot in writing this thesis. So I also express my gratitude to Arundathi Roy, Dr. Gopal Guru, Dr. Anand Teltumbede, Dr. Gail Omvedt, Dr. Kaka, Dr. Sudhpai, Dr. Haragopal, Dr. Dag Erick Berg and Dr. Danial C. Bach.

My special thanks Assistant Registrar, K. Yadagiri for his continuous support and help. I also thank Dr. Jacob Kale for helping me with the technical aspects of writing.

I am thankful to Arts college watchmen: Krishna Reddy, Kondaiah, Venkataiah, and ICSSR guest house staff - Yadaiah, Shiva, Kavitha, and Political Science Department staff - K. Shailaja, S. Bhaskar, V. Shekar and also CAS staff – T. Rajaiah, Giri Babu, and Santhosh for their support and co-operation.

I owe a debt beyond measure when it comes to my parents and family members; especially my father Basavaiah and my mother Mariyamma. Being the eldest son I saw the troubles and the difficulties they have faced in bringing us to this stage. Nothing would have been possible without their love, affection, care and efforts. My thanks to my brothers: Kota Sudhakar, Kota Babi, and their families for their love and affection. I also thank my brother-in-law, Dr. Aruri Sudhakar; my sister Balarani and my nephew Mr. Sahumaharaj for their care and affection. I also express my gratitude to my aunt Laxmi Durga and her family for their support and concern.

I wish to acknowledge the efforts of my friends N. Shama Rao and K Susheel Kumar. No words will be sufficient to express my gratitude to them, particularly Sham; he has been with me from the beginning of my thesis till I finished it: proofreading, editing and sometimes translating. I am surprised at his patience levels and academic commitment. Without his sincere support and help this would not have been possible. I also thank J. Ramya, wife of Sham, for allowing Sham to visit Hyderabad whenever his presence was necessary.

Finally my wife Raji…, to thank her is to undermine her contributions. Due to my hectic and uncertain work schedules, with a baby girl to look after, she is the one who suffered a lot because of this research. She even had postponed her studies to see me finish my thesis. I will be ever grateful to her for bringing happiness into my life, for the unstinting support, for all the sacrifices she had made and for the immense faith she had in me. And my daughter Sadhya (Buddi) has been the much necessary distraction from the long, tiresome and stressful work.
