ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Research in the era of science and technology is a joint effort of many individuals and particularly in education, the research work is often related to the students. It is not possible to complete the research without the cooperation and willingness of individuals other than the researcher. I am very much thankful to the principals of various secondary schools who rendered their full cooperation to me in collecting data for this research work.

I owe this exceptional moment of happiness, with deep sense of gratitude to my revered guide Dr. Neerja Gautam, Associate Professor, D.A.V. College of Education for Women, Amritsar, who always gave me full support and helped me tirelessly towards completion of this project. Without her guidance, my work could not have reached a logical conclusion. I would like to place on record my sincere feeling of respect for Dr. J.S. Dhillon, Dean, Faculty of education, GNDU, Amritsar for his valuable guidance. I also take this opportunity to thank Dr. N.S.Tung, Department of Psychology, GNDU, Amritsar for his valuable suggestions in my present research.

The relentless support and encouragement behind this work, is provided by my husband Er. Swapan Deep Arora cannot be comprehended in words. I am thankful to him for being a strong pillar behind me throughout this work.

My inspiration for pursuing the higher education and doctoral work has been my parents and my brother. I extend my sincere gratitude to them for showing their perseverance and standing by my highs and lows during the period of completion of my doctoral work in particular and life in general.
