Acknowledgements

In the course of writing this Ph.D Thesis, many people have encouraged and helped me directly and indirectly, and I am extremely grateful to them all. First of all, I acknowledge a special gratitude to my supervisor and mentor Prof. Anand Kumar without whose guidance this work would not have been possible to complete in time. His pertinent suggestions, correct focus, constructive criticisms, crucial comments on the work have enabled me to put the things in a right order. It is he who provided the right direction to reach the goal when I was facing obstacles in my venture. I remember quite well the lively discussions with him with warmth and friendliness on several crucial points. Inspite of his hectic and busy schedule he could afford time to observe and put his analytical points on the work quite thoroughly. I am really fortunate to have a supervisor like him.
I have accumulated a debt of gratitude to many people in different fields for their most pertinent comments on different chapters of the thesis. Although it is not possible to mention all the names, it will be an act of sacrilege if I don’t mention a few whose contributions have helped me in strengthening the pillars of the thesis. They are: Prof Ma Rong (China), Prof. Joy Kumar (Manipur), Shri Thaithuishung Pamei I.A.S. (Manipur), Prof. Monirul Hussain (Gauhati University), and Mr. Gaijon Newmei (Imphal).

I thank Prof. Tiplut Nongbri, Chairperson, Centre for the Study of Social Systems, School of Social Sciences, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi for many of her kindness and constructive suggestions during my Ph.D Programme. I also acknowledge the contributions of my colleagues in the Department of Sociology, Jamia Millia Islamia, New Delhi particularly Dr. Shareena Banu and Dr. Pradyumna Bag for their serious inputs on shaping and reshaping the contents and the methodology of my thesis.
My thanks also go to the 'SYLFF Fellowship' (Ryoichi Sasakawa Young Leaders Fellowship Fund), supported by Nippon Foundation and Tokyo Foundation, Japan for providing me the fellowship grants at the most needed time. I specially thank Ms. Ellen Mashiko, the then Executive Director of the Foundation who inspired me in many ways to do good research. I also thank Mr. Isamu Maruyama, Ms. Mami Yabe and the Staffs (Administration) of the Foundation for their continuous and untiring help and support.

I owe a deep gratitude to my late parents; my family members, and most importantly, my beloved partner, friend and wife Kamei Awungshi Mayophy who constantly gave me encouragement and support to strive better. She was very instrumental in shaping the thesis at the last stage of submission.

I also thank my friends – Mr. Sui Fumin who was also my translator at Peking University, China, Mr. Binod Singh, and my SYLFF Fellows from JNU who helped me in one way or the other to complete my work in time. I specially thank my elder brother Kamei Jenthoi, the Executive Member of the ‘Society for the Promotion of Community Task’ (SPCT), Imphal, Manipur who gave me the opportunity to participate and compere in the 4th Zelangrong Folk Festival on 17th December 2006. It was one of the rarest festivals from three states-Manipur, Nagaland and Assam and there I could discuss with many delegates and gathered lot of information required for my research.

Finally, I thank the Library staffs of Manipur University, Central Library Delhi University, Ratan Tata Library, Delhi School of Economics, University of Delhi, and Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi for allowing me to use their books.
