Acknowledgement

I am deeply indebted to Professor Satish K. Jain for his guidance, suggestions and encouragement all these years without which this thesis would not have been possible to complete. I am also grateful to him as well as to all my other teachers at Centre for Economic Studies and Planning for their generosity and patience with which they taught me economics.

I appreciate the help and cooperation I received from the office staffs of Centre for Economic Studies and Planning.

At every stage in the process of writing this thesis I received enthusiastic support, help and encouragement from Papiya. I would like to thank her and Debabrata Pal for their constructive comments and suggestions. Jyotirmoy Bhattacharya deserves a special thanks for helping me with LaTeX.

I consider myself extremely fortunate to have some very supportive friends; of them Amarjyoti, Anamitra, Aparajay, Arpan, Banishree, Debabrata Roy, Goutam, Indranil, Kaushik, Nivedita, Parag, Pritha, Sakti, Sharmistha, Tanusree, Tirthankar and Zico are just few to name. Shouvik and Caesar da need special mention for the way they have encouraged me in writing this thesis. Thanks to Rajen da for all those stimulating discussions we had on several occasions.

Last but not the least I would like to thank my parents and my sister for their support and encouragement when it was needed most.
