BIBLIOGRAPHY
BIBLIOGRAPHY

51. Charoo Naseem Ahmed, Areeg Anwer, Kohli Kanchan, Pillai K. K., Rahman Ziyaur, Improvement in bioavailability of transdermally applied Flurbiprofen using tulsi (Ocimum sanctum) and turpentine oil, Colloids and Surfaces B: Biointerfaces, 2008 (65), 300-307
68. Chen Y.W., Chuet K.S., et al., Dextromethorphan or Dextrorphan have a local anesthetic effect on infiltrative cutaneous analgesia in Rats. Anaesthesia & Analgesia, 2007; 104(5):1251-5.
135. Javeria A H, Marwan N B, et al. Lidocaine patch (5%) is no more potent than placebo in treating chronic back pain when tested in a randomised double blind placebo controlled brain imaging study Molecular Pain 2012, 8:29 structural approach. In R. L. Bronaugh, H. I. Maibach editor. Percutaneous Absorption - Drugs, 231-35.

183. Morimoto K., Iwakura Y., et al., Effects of proteolytic enzyme inhibitors as absorption enhancers on
185. Marianghi K., Mahendra D., et al., The effect of permeation enhancers on the viscosity and the release profile of transdermal hydroxypropyl methylcellulose gel formulations containing diltiazem HCl.
186. Moghimi H.R., Williams A.C., et al., A lamellar matrix model for stratum corneum intercellular lipids. Part 5. Effects of terpene penetration enhancers on the structure and thermal behavior of the cutaneous administration: preparation, characterization, and in vitro drug release study. Drug 188. Mutimer M.N., Reffkin C., et al., Modern ointment base technology.II. Comparative evaluation of
189. Mohammed C., Manoj V., Aerosol-OT microemulsions as transdermal carriers of tetracaine
190. Malmstein M., Microemulsion in pharmaceuticals. In: Kumar P., Mittal K.L. editors. Handbook of
191. Maurice P.D., Greaves M.W., Relationship between skin type and erythemal response to anthralin.

283. US Pharmacopeia USP30 NF25, 2007 <Chapter 51>, Anti microbial Preservative Testing
300. www.aptar.com [Last visited on May 23, 2013]

Research Guide

Dr. (Mrs.) Amrita N. Bajaj

Professor of Pharmaceutics