ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am indeed grateful to my supervisor Prof. V.S. Mani for his able guidance and scholarly advice without which this task would have been impossible.

Suggestions by Prof. R.P. Anand, Prof. Y.K. Tyagi, Prof. B.S. Chimni and Dr. Bharath Desai also helped me in formulating my ideas on the topic.

There are many friends whom I owe many thanks. Dr. Sudhakar Reddy’s valuable suggestions helped me all through my research. Krishna Deva Rao, Dr. Balakrishna Reddy, Luther Rangreji, Vidjea Bharathi, Dr. D.V. Rao and Dr. Lakshmi constantly encouraged me whenever I needed support. My good old friends Raghu and Ravi have, as always, been helpful.

A special mention should me made about my wife Vijaya who has been the ‘victim’ of my erratic behaviour whenever I was under pressure. Without her patient cooperation and emotional support this work would have never been possible.

My DSU friends have all along been encouraging, inspiring and caring. In fact, if there is anything I learnt in my JNU days it is because of the intellectually stimulating interactions with them that shaped my ideas.

Benarji and Raju have all along been helpful and caring and they are part of almost all the crucial decisions in my JNU life and in fact it may sound too formal to thank them.

I am very much indebted to my parents whose ignorance I exploited in choosing my academic options. I am also grateful to my father-in-law Krishna Rao, aunt Jaya, Shanthi, Sridhar, Padma, Jyothi, Suresh, Sridevi, Anu and Munni.

I am extremely thankful to my friends Dr. Prashanth, Gilbert and Peter for their timely help in collecting some of the important materials from Abroad. I am also thankful to Kanaka and Agni for their patient editing and to Surendra for helping in typing the thesis.

After all it is the money that primarily makes things happen. Thus, the financial assistance provided by the Institute for the World Congress on Human Rights, the Indian Council for Social Science Research and the Institute of Objective Studies greatly helped me in meeting the research related expenses. I am very thankful to them.

I thank the Library Staff of the JNU, the Indian Society of International law and the Indian Law Institute for their cooperation in collecting the required materials.
